SPANISH TRUCE PLANS FAIL TO DEVELOP

Alice Longworth Says

(Special To The News)

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Even the most flagrant "economic royalists" have been taught to believe that labor is not a commodity, but that doctrine has thus far not penetrated to the politicians. Labor, in terms of its vote, is one of the most important commodities in which they deal.

Among the most inveterate politicians are some of the labor leaders. John L. Lewis, and George L. Berry, president of Labor's Non-Partisan League, publicly propose to deliver the labor vote to the New Deal. Mr. William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, however, proclaims that his organization will remain truly non-partisan.

This difference in policy emphasizes the deepening rift among the labor chieftains.

Another difference of opinion between labor experts appears in the press. Secretary of Labor Perkins says that eight and a half million have been put to work since March 1933, while Mr. Green states that ten million are still unemployed.

While the doctors disagree, who knows but that the patient may go out and vote as he chooses!

ALICE LONGWORTH.

PA NEWC OBSERVES

Attracted by the warm weather and the fact that they had a half holiday from school sessions, a number of youngsters gathered at the pool at the foot of Croton Hill in the Neshannock Wednesday afternoon to swim. The pool had been deserted for the past few weeks.

Pa Newc observed a man driving through the city this morning in a rather dilapidated car with a bicycle strapped on the back. He evidently did not trust the flivver's ability to make its destination and was prepared for any emergency.

Bcycles have become a menace to motorists, Pa Newc has been informed. It is stated that any evening one can drive about the streets of the city and will find a great many youngsters riding bicycles without lights. Parents must put a great deal of faith in the guardian angel, the observer states, as he has seen a great many narrow escapes from collisions.

Just one more day and another football season lid will be pried off in New Castle. At Taggart stadium tomorrow night, New Castle senior high gridders will engage in their premier for the season, with Braddock high eleven as opponents.

Late Wednesday for the first time a beautiful white wax-like flower appeared on a Night-Blooming Cereus at the home of Mrs. Minnie M. Sullivan 506 Young street, near the corner of Wallace avenue, and was of great interest to neighbors and friends. It is often years before the strange cactaceous plant bursts into bloom but when it does the owner is very well rewarded.

Rebel Leader Spurs Troops On To Final Drive To Take Madrid

(BULLETIN)

HENDAYE, France Sept. 10 Guns of two forts outside San Sebastian, ceaselessly pounding at the main rebel force menacing the city, today, thundered their denials that a truce is in effect.

Negotiations aimed to save the city from anarchist firebrands and to rescue rebel hostages continued, but relentlessly Gen. Emilo Mola proclaimed from rebel army headquarters his determination to carry the conflict through to a decisive conclusion.

"Spain is in a war of re-conquest to free herself from foreign elements who have gotten into power," Gen. Mola was quoted as saying.

"In such a war no mediation is possible."

Capture Delayed

Due to the effective fire of the Loyalist forts of Santa Barbara and San Marco, which have large reserves of ammunition, rebel leaders said it would likely take four or five days to capture San Sebastian.

Moreover, according to rebel sources, Gen. Mola has withdrawn his foreign legionnaires from the San Sebastian attacking forces and

Becker Is Denied Change Of Venue

State Court Rules Murder Trial Must Be Held In Jefferson County

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Sept 10.—The state supreme court in a per curiam order today denied John Becker, now awaiting trial for the brutal attack-slaying of pretty Miss Katherine Bracken, a change of venue from Jefferson county.

Counsel for the prisoner, bent on obtaining a change of venue, insisted Becker could not receive a fair trial in the community where he was indicted.

Becker, the father of two children but estranged from his wife, was indicted on a murder charge for the death of Miss Bracken near his lonely signal tower station on the Pittsburgh and Shawmont railroad, near Brookville, Jefferson county.

Miss Bracken's body was found lying at the base of a railroad bed's embankment last April 10. Her head had been bashed in by a heavy inkstand and her throat slashed with a knife. Police said her slayer attacked her before discarding her body by hurling it down the embankment.

Becker was arrested in Brookville, where he lived with one of his two children. Because of threats of violence, he was confined in the Butler county jail, but was returned to a cell at Brookville after his indictment.

In seeking the change of venue, counsel for the prisoner charged Becker could not receive a fair trial in the community where the crime occurred.

McAfee President

The campaign plans were adopted after the enlarged board had elected W. Keith McAfee, president of the Universal Sanitary & Manufacturing company and prominent civic leader, as president for the ensuing year.

Chosen with Mr. McAfee were A. L. Bintz, Jr., general manager of the New Castle Dry Goods company, as vice president, and Attorney Frank Hover, secreary. The Union Trust company was named as treasurer again.

Party Leaders Differ On Georgia Result

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Joseph W. Martin, Jr., eastern campaign manager for Gov. Alfred M. Landon, and James A. Farley, Democratic national chairman, today expressed conflicting opinions regarding the Georgia primary election which resulted in a victory for Senator Richard B. Russell, Jr., in his bid for renomination over his anti-New Deal opponent, Governor Eugene Talmadge.

Martin said:

"Naturally, it was to be expected that the Roosevelt element would carry Georgia. However, I consider every vote cast for Governor Talmadge to be a vote against the New Deal."

Farley declared:

"The result in Georgia was not unexpected. It was another evidence of the popularity of President Roosevelt. In this particular state, Governor Talmadge had a state administration functioning whole-heartedly in his behalf yet he received one of the worst defeats administered in a major primary fight in Georgia.

"Governor Talmadge made the New Deal the issue and the voters in Georgia gave him their answer."

Some 10,511 Pupils Present First Day Of City School Term

Enrolment figures for the New Castle public schools on the opening day of school, Wednesday, September 9, were made public today by Superintendent C. C. Green. The total for all schools is 10,511, an increase for first day enrolment of 44 over 1935 and 60 less than 1934. First day figures will be increased daily for the next month, it is anticipated.

The senior high school shows an increase in first day enrolment, 1851 being present Wednesday. This is an increase of 146 over 1935 when there were 1705 on the first day. Neither of the figures include the 10th year enrolment in the George Washington junior high school. These students are senior high school students but cannot be accommodated in the senior building. With this addition the total of senior high school students will run over 2000. Post grads will swell this number next week.

The enrolment in the senior high school has increased remarkably since the World War. In the past ten years it has increased over 50 per cent. In 1926 the first day enrolment was 1304.

Doe And Fawns Seen Near Pulaski

Pulaski Principal, Enroute Home, Sights Them On Taylor Farm

While driving home from school at Pulaski Wednesday evening, Principal Ralph D. Wadding of the Pulaski public school sighted a large doe and three small fawns trailing behind on the Taylor dairy farm just west of Pulaski.

Mr. Wadding relates it this way:

"I was within 75 yards of them and watched as they crossed the highway. The doe would run a short distance and then wait until the fawns could catch up, then she would turn around and leap gracefully ahead again. When she reached the highway she waited until the triplets were by her side, and then all darted across together. A deer usually has two offspring each year, but very seldom have triplets been seen."

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—American warships today were withdrawing from waters surrounding strife-torn Spain on joint orders of the state and navy departments.

The action was taken after the American government came to the conclusion that its mission of evacuating American refugees from Spain was at an end.

Secretary Hull revealed that the navy department has issued orders speeding these warships out of the danger zone immediately.

Hull said the vessels would proceed to ports in nearby countries.

They will remain there for the time being to be ready to dash back into Spanish waters to take care of any emergency that might arise involving the few Americans remain-

I've looked at canvasses here and there, Rembrandt's, Picasso's and many more, masters of color and form and line, up to the heights of their art they soared. But as lovely as work that the masters did, from the ones that I've seen I just can't recall, a canvas that rivals a forest grove, when the color has touched in early fall. Browns and yellows and orchid tints, sepias, magentas, and traces of green, all combined in a masterpiece, the peer of the masters I've ever seen. For old Dame Nature knows color too, and she splashes it round in such a way as mere man could never expect to do, the weather is eighty three today.

NO PRISONERS BEING TAKEN

Such Is Report In Spain's War

Fight To Finish Or Series Of Decimating Conflicts In Future

ANARCHIST PERIL FACING COUNTRY

By EDWARD HUNTER
International News Service Staff Correspondent
Copyright, 1936, By International News Service

PARIS, Sept. 10—The civil war raging in Spain appears today to be either a fight to the finish, with one side virtually exterminating the other, or the first of a series of decimating conflicts which may follow each other in rapid succession.

This was the opinion expressed to me by an element foreign observer in Spain, and it was borne out by my own observation at the battle front and behind the lines.

Everywhere at the front the refrain was the same:

"No prisoners are being taken."

This applied to both sides. No mercy was asked by rebels or Loyalists, and none was expected.

Other phrases one heard everywhere were:

"No wounded are being taken."

"Suspects are shot on sight."

Villages Deserted

Loyalists blamed the rebels for starting this type of warfare which has left whole villages—in Aragon province, for example—deserted.

First these villages were captured by rebels, and left elements were "liquidated." Then the government troops recaptured the villages and shot everyone they found there on the assumption that if they were not rebels the enemy would have killed them.

Observers could only characterize such tactics as a throw-back to the days of Torquemada, the inquisition, and the blood-thirsty conflicts with Moors.

The present government-rebel conflict is only the first phase of the warfare, according to all indications and either the right or left-wingers may have to fight it out among themselves afterwards for supremacy.

"What about the anarchists if your side wins?" I asked a communist.

"If they don't get killed at the front we will have to kill them afterward," the Red replied.

I asked a fascist:

"What about the Carlists if your side wins?"

His answer boded no good for the Carlists.

All the factions on both sides were at odds.

When the rebels got underway at Barcelona, it began simultaneously with a strike declared by one labor union against another.

The strike was called off in the face of a common danger, but several weeks later the head and secretary of the socialist labor union were killed. Anarchists were accused of killing them.

The tragedy of the war became even more evident to me when, viewing it from the government lines, I saw it as a family affair—a conflict in which entire families husbands, wives and often their children, were fighting side by side at the front.

who for many years has been at the helm of chest activities.

Mrs. Johnson presided during the first part of last night's meeting and then gave her place over to Mr. McAfee after his election.

Reconvene Chest

The board, by resolution, formally "reconvened" the New Castle Community Chest. Last year it had "recessed" and had conducted no campaign. All drives in 1935 were sponsored separately.

For almost three hours the board discussed problems of the Chest. Matters concerning a campaign director were considered and President McAfee will immediately name a board committee to handle that work.

The directors created a new public relations committee which will function throughout the year, and whose duty it will be to acquaint New Castle's citizenry with the work Chest agencies do.

Practically every agency which will be in the Chest was represented last night. In some cases spokesmen were not able to attend.

"New Castle wants a united Community Chest campaign this fall, we believe, and we're proceeding with advance plans for that drive," President McAfee said. "Last year there were many drives—this fall that won't be repeated."

Agencies and organizations which sponsored two-year drives last year will be non-participating Chest agencies this fall. While they will be listed among the others, they will not be asking for any funds.

Serving on the reorganized board which has set its maximum membership at 35, are representatives of many of the city's service clubs They were present last night.

sped them to the Huesca-Saragossa front, where the rebels are said to have suffered set-backs at the guns of the Catalonians.

The main reason for sending the Legionnaires to another sector however, is said to be Gen. Mola's desire to give full credit for the San Sebastian victory, when its comes to the troops of Navarre.

San Sebastian itself remains almost unscathed by rebel fire, which is being withheld during discussions to preserve the city from the flaming destruction of Irun.

Moderates in the city are now said to be gaining the upper hand over the "bitter end" anarchists, four of whom are reported to have been killed for looting. Surrender of the city may yet be arranged, if the rebels promise not to bombard it, and to spare its defenders.

Six hundred hostages, according to reports on the French side, have been removed to Bilbao for their safety, in spite of anarchist opposition.

Plans Decisive Drive On Madrid

Madrid, Sept. 10—Gen. Francisco, Franco chief military "brains" of Spanish rebellion covered the Toledo front in a fast motor-car, marshalling his 12,000 Legiannaires along the Taugus river for a decisive push against Madrid.

Abandonment of the Alcanzar in Toledo by the rebels, and minor successes on the Saragossa front and at Oviedo were claimed on the government's side of the civil war ledger, but the radical government of Premier Francisco Largo Caballero was plainly alarmed at the reverses suffered by the strongest of the Loyalist armies between Talavera De La-Reina and Toledo.

Besides San Sebastian Bilbao and Gijon in the north, where food and ammunition are running short, are threatened with capture by the rebels, according to insurgents' reports.

While Gen. Franco spurred on his troops for the major offensive against the capital, Gen. Emilio Mola helped tighten the Madrid pincers with the capture of San Pedro Pass, 70 miles west of Madrid. From the eastern extremity of the Guadarrama front around almost to Toledo, the unified forces of Franco and Mola form mighty hook now drawing in on Madrid.

A government radio broadcast today asserted the 1700 rebels who held out against bombardment and hunger in the Alcazar for 50 days have now abandoned the old fort in Toledo and taken refuge in a group of buildings nearby.

This was not borne out, however, by accounts of a futile attempt by Col. Roja, a Loyalist member of parliament to persuade the Alcazar defenders to surrender.

siege, Loyalists opened a terrific fire at 9:00 a. m.

Powerful mortars fired persistently at five-minute intervals, but the granite walls of the fortress defied the bombardment.

Prepare For Long Campaign

Indicating it was preparing for a long campaign against the rebels the government formally appealed today for women enlistments.

"We need an army to work for the army at the front," said an official statement. "These men need clothes for the coming cold season."

Many women already are aiding the Leftists by fighting in the front lines, but today an appeal was particularly for help behind the lines.

Kidnaping Clue Fails

(BULLETIN)
(International News Service)

DETROIT, Sept. 10.—Police seeking to solve the strange disappearance of 20-month-old Harry Browe were thrown into reverse this afternoon when their only definite kidnap suspect was revealed as a father who drove to Toledo with his small child after a quarrel with his wife.

The discovery made the mystery deeper than ever. Baby Browe has been sought in three states since he was reported stolen from a perambulator in Clark park last Saturday.

The man and baby whose description has been furnished by three persons along the Detroit-Toledo highway are Roy Smith of Dearborn and his 21-months-old son, police say, and he had nothing to do with the reported baby kidnaping.

It was Smith's Toledo trip, made at the height of the kidnaping search, which led police here off on a tangent to the extent that an announcement was made that the Browe kidnaper was known and that an arrest was imminent.

He expects to be back in Topeka Wednesday.

The governor was showered with telegraphic commendations on his surprise decision to close the campaign in Maine. One telegram after another from Republican leaders and from private citizens congratulated him for deciding to launch a fighting campaign against Roosevelt."

Landon already has decided on a tour of the farm belt starting from here about September 20. His itinerary for that trip includes Des-Moines, where he conferred with President Roosevelt only a week ago on the drought problem. He will deliver a major address there September 22, outlining the Republican farm program.

He also will visit Minneapolis and Milwaukee on this trip. The itinerary is still in the formation stage and may be extended.

RESCUE 212 FROM SINKING STEAMER AFTER COLLISION

ships were in radio communication with each other but were unaware of their proximity to each other.

Both captains had ordered searchlights to play on the fog-covered water and fog-horns were being used by both ships at the time of the crash.

Although none of the 325 passengers aboard the New York was injured many were thrown to the decks in the collision.

Ladders were lowered from the towering deck of the New York to the Romance and passengers and crew scrambled aboard the coastwise steamer to safety.

Orders Lifeboats Lowered

Captain Wickens, fearing the Romance could not stay afloat long enough for all the passengers to climb to the New York ordered four lifeboats lowered. Twenty persons were saved in the small boats.

Steam enveloped the Romance as pipes burst in the hold. The mad dash of passengers for life preservers was halted when the ladders were lowered from the New York.

The Romance carried Captain Wickens and passenger Antone Ferreira, Provincetown, under water as it sank, but the two men swam until rescued by members of the New York crew. The two men stayed aboard looking for passengers.

The New York made her way to the harbor docks unaided after the crash despite a staved in bow.

Little National Significance To Primary Results

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—State nominating primaries this week in the South and in the Far West were largely devoid of national significance, but the Democrats managed to extract some satisfaction from the results.

The decisive defeat administered to Gov. Eugene Talmadge of Georgia in his effort to unseat Senator Richard B. Russell was a source of comfort to the New Dealers. Talmadge has long been a southern thorn to them. The red-gallused Georgian has been a fiery critic of the administration, first as an imitator of the late Huey Long, then as sponsor of the insurgent "grass roots" convention at Macon early this year, and finally as the anti-Roosevelt candidate for the Senate from Georgia.

The woman, Miss Naida Belle Neal of Princeton, fled to Bluefield and was arrested there. Her victim, whom she shot with a pistol, died last night in a Princeton hospital.

LUNCHEON LAUNCHES WIMODAUSIS SEASON

The doors of the Scottish Rite Cathedral were again opened to a distinguished group of women, the Wimodausis Club, on Wednesday afternoon, when they met for their opening event of the fall and winter season. The occasion was launched with a luncheon served in the diningroom, and Mrs. Harry Pearce presided as hostess.

Autumnal tones predominated in the attractive table arrangement, with clusters of flowers being used as centerpieces. A delicious menu was served, and immediately afterwards, Mrs. Roy Long, program chairman for the day, took charge.

She presented in an especially enjoyable program, the following. Miss Kathryn Bittner contributed two violin selections, the first, "Schon-Rosmarie" by Fritz Kreisler and her second number was "Rondino" also by Kreisler. Miss Isabel Johnson was accompanist. Following, two groups of readings by Kathryn Johnson provided another pleasure for the assemblage. Miss Isabel Johnson concluded the entertainment with a piano selection, the Second Movement of Bethovans Sonata-Opus 13.

A short business period ensued, with the president, Mrs. H. L. Dague, in charge. It was decided to hold their October meeting on the first Wednesday, the seventh, instead of the regular date, due to the fact the Wimodausis will serve the Sunday School convention at the Cathedral on October 14, 15 and 16.

The couple were wed on April 11 at Cumberland, Md., with the Rev. A. K. Flora, pastor of the Methodist church officiating. They were unattended. She will be remembered as the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Badger on East Washington street, this city, and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Shaffer, of the New Castle-Ellwood road.

Mrs. Shaffer has been associated with her brother's store, known as the Badger-Fleeger concern in Ellwood City, while Mr. Shaffer, a graduate of Shenango high with the class of '34, is engaged in the garage business on the Ellwood road. Both are well known locally.

After a summer recess from the usual trend of activities, the sewing sessions at Jameson Memorial hospital were again resumed on Wednesday morning, with Gowanda club members in charge.

The hostess group together with other women interested in the hospital, accomplished much work from 9 until 12 o'clock in the Solarium. It was decided the same organization will meet each Wednesday throughout September to enable them to get caught up a bit with the completion of needed articles. The same hours will be observed and Gowanda women, who will preside, invite others to join them and assist.

On the meeting days, those women not having means of transportation to and from the hospital, will be accommodated by calling Mrs. James D. Crawford, chairman of the motorcade committee, formed expressly for this purpose.

On behalf of the assembled group, Mrs. Tempa Stickle, conductress of the local council, presented the guest of honor with a third gift, all of which were expressive of appreciation for the splendid work Mrs. Woods has done for the auxiliary during the past four years especially.

The evening was spent socially bingo providing informal entertainment. Prizes were awarded to Mrs. Margaret Baldauf, Mrs. Helen Dunlap, Mrs. Ada Miller, Mrs. Mae Evans, Mrs. Mary Nicholson, Mrs. Mary Conway.

Their next sewing assembly falls due on Wednesday, October 14, with Mrs. Anna Duff and Miss Claire Duff co-hostesses. The usual procedure will be observed.

J. P. Club Corn Roast

Members of the J. P. club entertained their husbands and families at a corn and wiener roast on a recent date, at the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Klamer, Mt. Jackson.

Games and music provided pleasures during the afternoon hours, and late in the evening, the group gathered about a bonfire where fireside songs were enjoyed. At a suitable time an appetizing supper menu was served.

Special guests were, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jendrysik, Mr. and Mrs. Bete Biga, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Glink and Mr. and Mrs. Mike Klamer and children.

At the business meeting plans for an all day sewing at the church on September 16 were made.

EAST SIDERS PLANT TREE ON DIAMOND

Through efforts of the East Side Garden club, the downtown public square will boast of another decorative tree in the near future. The group at its September meeting on Wednesday, with Mrs. C. R. Brenner, of Huron avenue, voted to have the tree, probably one of the Japanese cherry variety, planted at an early date.

Also at some other time this month, the club will have a special meeting followed by a campfire, at a place and date to be named later. Other new business transacted yesterday had to do with the appointment of committees for the year.

These include program on which Mrs. C. R. Brenner will serve as chairman. Her aides will be Mrs. J. A. Wilson and Mrs. Jennie Shaffer. On the nominating committee are: Mrs. Earl McKnight, Mrs. Louis Garrett and Miss Anna Dieterle.

Reports were heard concerning the very successful garden show which the club held in the Epworth church the latter part of August. In spite of the hot, dry weather this summer, there were beautiful blooms on display as well as unusual exhibits. There was a good attendance, and altogether the East Siders feel that their second annual show was equally as successful, if not more so, than their first attempt last year.

The program after the business was concluded yesterday, was enjoyable in that it dealt with fall flowers. Mrs. Louis Garrett had a fine paper on "Zinnias and Asters," which was followed by an interesting article on "Flowers That Bloom in the Seed Catalogues," by Mrs. Harry Sturdevant, who substituted for Mrs. J. A. Wilson. Roll call was answered by naming fall flowers.

The usual buffet lunch preceded the meeting, the table on which the tasty viands were arranged being centered with a gay bouquet of garden beauties. Special guests were the hostess' mother and sister Mrs. Charles A. Johnson and Miss Irma Johnson, who are here from Los Angeles, Cal.

Next regular meeting of the garden club will take place October 14, in the home of Mrs. Louis Garrett, 110 North Scott street.

NORTH BEAVER CLUB HEAR TWO SPEAKERS

Two very interesting speakers, Nick Casillo, naturalist, and Miss Grace M. Sedgwick, who is a visitor in the vicinity, from South Africa, were heard by the North Beaver Garden club at the September meeting Wednesday evening in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Brewster at Mt. Jackson.

Mr. Casillo's talk was one of adventure with wild flowers, as he described numerous trips he had taken to find many different varieties. Miss Sedgwick, who is the house guest of Mrs. William Davis of the Mt. Jackson-Bessemer road, is connected with the U. S. department of agriculture, working in South Africa. She spoke of the cutoms in the far away land, and told of her experiences and work with the natives.

Both talks were delightfully interesting and informal, making the evening's program unusual as well as informative. There were about 20 members present.

The next meeting is dated for October 14 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William McCombs on the Mt. Jackson road.

HADASSAH CONFERENCE SUNDAY IN PITTSBURGH

Jolly Jesters Club Outing

A special outing was enjoyed by the Jolly Jesters club members Saturday evening, when they motored to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Shane, Edenburg. The group invited a number of friends and guests to share the occasion, and as the caravan of cars arrived on the scene a program of entertainment was soon in progress. Japanese lanterns were used in lighting the yard.

At a later hour, a huge bonfire was built, and campfire singing proved an added pleasure while wieners were roasted and an appetizing feast was fully prepared. Toasted marshmallows topped the menu.

Regular meeting of the club members will occur September 24 at the residence of Mrs. Clifford Beight, Edenburg.

FRIENDS HONOR MRS. MACIARELLO

Honoring the fifty-first birthday anniversary of Mrs. Nicholas Maciarello, a number of guests gathered in her home, 745 South Mill street, at a delightful party, last evening.

The affair was given by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Maciarello, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Maciarello, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Richards, Phyllis Maciarello and Fred Maciarello. Louis Cherol and Geno Morrelli, were special guests. The honored guest was presented with a gift by the Ten Ivory club.

A FRILL WITH A THRILL

EVERY high school student taught to drive an automobile. This is the novel course that has been added to the curriculum of a Minnesota high school and it should prove a popular addition to the course of instruction. It will be compulsory for every boy and girl. It is designed of course to make careful and competent motorists out of the youth who now just naturally "pick up" the art of car operation. To make it a scientific study has far-reaching potentialities.

Better drivers enhance safety on the highways. Youth with its quick and alert mind is usually eager to learn to drive the family car and then to possess one of its own. Such courses, it more generally available, might lessen the demand for higher age limit for motorists. In the opinion of many persons the present minimum is not high enough. Success of this experiment should instill in the minds of students a desire for efficiency and carefulness rather than for recklessness and speed.

CATCHING CRIMINALS THROUGH MOVIES

When a detective recognized a passing pedestrian as an escaped convict whom he had seen among a group of prisoners in an experimental film shown in Trenton last May the effectiveness of the motion picture for criminal identification was given convincing demonstration.

It was just such means of apprehending fugitives that Colonel Schwarzkopf, former superintendent of the New Jersey State police, had in mind when he developed the film process for identification purposes. It is evident that a motion picture can show clearly the appearance, the posture, the personality, the voice, the gestures of the filmed criminal, and thus make his recognition by officers of the law, and by citizens generally, less difficult.

Fingerprinting, photographing for rogue galleries, "mugging" before local police at routine line-ups all have their part in facilitating identification, but none of them can detract from the vast possibilities inherent in bringing wanted men to life on the screen. Hiding out will become more arduous when the motion picture and the sound-truck are on a fugitive's trail.

CALL THE FIRE DEPARTMENT

Writing in "Safeguarding America Against Fire," Chief Engineer George W. Booth of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, calls attention to the great importance of calling the fire department promptly when a blaze breaks out.

"Even in fireproof buildings serious loss may be expected when there is a delay in discovery of the fire," says Mr. Booth, who then recommends interior local alarm systems, automatic alarms and sprinklers and similar equipment. "The first duty of everyone on discovery of a fire is to make sure that the alarm has been transmitted to the fire department."

This doctrine is as applicable to homes as it is to factories and places of business. Many a fire that could have been easily extinguished had the fire department been summoned at once, has been allowed to grow to serious proportions. Amateur "fire fighting" is apt to do more harm than good. A small fire that looks as if it could be easily extinguished with a garden hose can turn a home into an inferno while the householder is getting ready in his attempt to put it out.

Every year, people attempt to extinguish gasoline and oil fires with water—even though every school-boy knows that this simply spreads the flame, and that only chemical extinguishers will work effectively. And thousands of people, thinking it needless to call the fire department for a small fire, try to put it out themselves without proper knowledge or equipment. Sometimes they are successful—but when they fail, great and needless property loss, and perhaps loss of life, result.

When fire starts, call the fire department—and call it at once. That's what it's for.

The People's Government

From The Philadelphia Inquirer

Walter Lippmann's announcement that he is going to vote for Governor Landon for president is not of great political moment. Mr. Lippmann's support will not elect Landon any more than his opposition would defeat him. But, amplifying his electoral intention, this discerning commentator has expressed a thought of transcendent importance which should be pondered by every voter: "I am going to put my faith in the combined wisdom of a representative government rather than in the personal brilliance and daring of an individual leader."

All the problems in this campaign boil down to the one primary issue, the restoration of representative government. That is what is meant by such phrases as "giving the government back to the people" and "rededicating the country to the American way of life." Release from stupendously wasteful spending, unjust taxation and unconstitutional laws depends entirely on the renewal of America's traditional representative government.

President Roosevelt was elected on a strong Democratic platform by the combined votes of Democrats and Republicans. Installed in the White House, he tossed the platform out of the window and conveniently forgot his obligation to the millions of voters of both major parties who had placed him in office. He surrounded himself with a group of impractical theorists, and disciples of collectivism and proceeded to impose upon the country his own and his expeirmental advisers' program, the New Deal.

Mr. Roosevelt found congressmen, ever interested in political self-preservation, only too happy to do his bidding in forwarding his personalized government. "Must" laws became a commonplace. Personal management of federal finances reached its un-American zenith when the president asked, and received, a blanket appropriation of four billion dollars to be expended at his direction.

Opposition by Republicans and conservative Democrats to the various ramifications of the New Deal was accepted as defiance and challenge by the president and his associates. Protest against the administration's economic fallacies was made to appear almost treasonable. A horde of ballyhooers sang the praises of personal government's sabotage of business, but, when stockholders remonstrated against the goernment's destruction of their savings invested in American industry, their cries of alarm were derided as "propaganda" by the dictatorial New Deal.

Mr. Lippmann is not the only observer of events who sees the world of today torn by conflicting philosophies of government. In many countries of Europe democracy has been as ruthlessly trampled down as have the non-combatants in Spain. Human rights have been annulled by autocratic leaders of personalized government and liberties have been sacrificed to the anachronistic doctrine that individuals exist only for the state.

It is true that no mortal man can foresee the course of history during the next four years, but it is reasonable to believe that in that period critical conditions will continue to face representative government throughout the world. The voice of the people presumably will still have difficulty making itself

Under The Alps, Then Italy.
Mussolini's Rebuilding.
Old, Forgotten Castle Walls.
Ships That Come No More.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

THIS COLUMN is written in Italy; others written here will follow. An American who has travelled across his own country, many times, remembering the distance across New Mexico, Arizona, big Texas, states between the oceans, is amazed at the speed with which he travels here from one nation and one language, to another nation of different language, the two as far apart in everything as the poles.

You settle down in your first, second or third-class seat, thank the Frenchman who puts your luggage in a rack above your head, meditate for a few minutes on the ruins of empires, the difference between American and European cooking, or the election campaign proceeding in the U. S. A.

THE TRAIN glides out of the southern end of a tunnel under the Alps, and a polite young customs representative of the Mussolini government, calls you signor, instead of monsieur, everybody talks and thinks Italian; landscape, houses, uniforms, farms, human faces, language are all different, as though you had been transplanted on another planet.

The young Mussolini customs official asks how much Italian, French, American money you have. Takes your word, examines nothing, seems glad to see you instead of scowling.

THINGS CHANGE on this little earth ball. Our early European ancestors, with flint-tipped clubs, walked over those mountains, always watching for a weaker man to eat.

Hannibal, with his war elephants crossing to Spain from Carthage, then over the Pyrenees, marched through the Alpine passes, into Italy, recruiting soldiers by force, or guile, as he went.

All Of Us

By MARSHALL MASLIN

"I'M SCARED OF COWARDS"

I HEARD a man say, "I'm scared of cowards." For an instant I thought that a silly remark. Why should anybody be afraid of a coward? . . . A coward can't hurt you. He wants to save his own skin. He can't take a punch and knows it. He can't stand pain. He doesn't want his handsome nose spoiled. . . . Draw a line on the ground and dare him to cross it and he won't dast to do it. Put a chip on your shoulder and suggest he knock it off. He'll decide that it does very well where it is. . . . Why should anybody be afraid of a coward?

Well, before you could count ten I realized that I, too, am scared of cowards and I can tell you why in a few words.

It's because you can't tell what cowardice will do. It doesn't dare to stand up and fight, but it is as eager as courage to win, to triumph, to impose its superiority—even more so.

The coward is afraid—and is ashamed—and revengeful. He (or she) cannot win fairly, but winning is so very important that he will stoop to win unfairly. Honest strength is lacking, so sneaking treachery takes its place. . . . The coward uses gestures, silences, sly hints, innuendo, unfair tactics. He fights in the dark, in the fog, behind your back. . . . And if you know a coward who doesn't like you, you'd BETTER be afraid of him because he might do you dirt.

And if you suspect that somewhere in the conglomeration of characters that make up YOU—if you suspect yourself of a patch of cowardliness about life—then you'd better be more afraid of that little streak than of all the recklessness, carelessness, foolishness and daring that are all the rest of you put together. . . . Because if you don't watch it carefully, it'll get you into terrible trouble some day.

LOS ANGELES . . Amelia Earhart views the recent successes of women fliers:

"The only landmarks in my career I recognize are the pictures I make. This is the only thing of importance to me."

HOLLYWOOD . . Brian Aherne explains why he refuses to sign autographs unless the asker knows his identity:

Hints and Dints

Sun sets tonight 6:18. Sun rises tomorrow 5:37.

Green apples caused the death of a 14 year old boy in Pittsburgh. We never heard of green apples causing death before but we have felt ourselves that we would die after filling up on them years ago when ripe ones could be had just as easily not far away. Green apples are the original forbidden fruit to our mind.

And there is the chap with the promising look. He'll promise you anything.

Some people are so tender-hearted they can't hurt any living creature except relatives.

Meet this poor wife. She says her husband starts out for the employment bureau every morning but she never knows where he goes.

A sort of a medicine has been invented that will prevent suicide. The old rope and cannon will still be used by many who will not take time for any medicine to act.

If the golf husband's wife could see him prancing around the locker room in his B. V. D's she wouldn't care if he never came home.

When a wife says, "you men are so helpless!" it means her husband is stalling to escape a job he doesn't like.

A plumber has invented a device designed to help those suffering from hay fever. It looks like a football nose guard and is held on by an elastic band around the head. It has a strainer in it to catch the dust and in this strainer is some cotton and vaseline. Seems to us having the hay fever couldn't be as bad as wearing a thing like that. Why not get into a barrel?

"What's the matter with Jimmie?"

"Aw, he feels disgraced for life."

"How's that?"

"His mother come out to the ball game yesterday and took him home right off second base."

Eli Potts got teched with the heat t'other day and started throwin' away all his money. Said he was goin' to squander his way back to prosperity.

One of the reasons the bartenders of Pennsylvania want women barred from buying liquor over the bars is because girl bartenders work for about six dollars a week. Getting the gals away from behind the bars is really the reason.

When an aviation corporation buys an airplane it is charged to overhead expense.

No matter how nicely a person is dressed, even wearing a high silk hat, the whole effect is spoiled by wearing sloppy looking shoes. Dressing the feet is very important no matter how few or how many clothes are worn.

The plowing under of grain and killing the little pigs and paying farmers for not raising things sure did raise the prices of things and it has helped Europe out of its depression.

The fact that the flax seed poultice draws a lot of bad out of a man can't be blamed entirely for the slim church attendance.

The sales of cash registers are increasing in this country. Those things are good to have around for safety sake. We knew of a bird once who quit his job because the boss put in a cash register and it had a loud alarm on it when it was opened.

Small families have one advantage. When one answers the phone, there is less chance that he isn't the person wanted.

Wasted opportunities are usually found on a bench in the park or hanging around a pool room.

When mother tells pap she wants to see him after the children go to school for a serious talk, he wonders what she has heard.

Little Willie was suffering from a severe cold and his mother gave him a bottle of cough mixture to take while he was at school. On his return home she asked him if he had taken his medicine regularly.

"Oh, no," replied Willie. "But Jimmie Wiggins did. He liked it so I swapped it for a handful of peanuts."

Even stupidity has value. It enables people to rule because they are dumb enough to think themselves superior.

FISH STORY

The tale herein related by George P. Kicklighter of Savannah, Ga., is primarily a dog story, but it has a decidedly fishy tang to it just the same.

Most of the watchmen in our concern, he says, have dogs to keep them company during the long nights when everybody is asleep, and naturally through long association become very attached to their pets. To hear some of them talk about their animals you would think they were really human.

Not long ago it was necessary for one of our inspectors to make a trip to one of these plants. On arriving he found the watchman in the boiler room playing with his dog. He inquired if the animal could do any tricks, and the watchman said he was exceptionally smart and a particularly good hunting dog. If he wanted to go deer hunting he would get his rifle and start for the woods, but the dog invariably beat him to it and had a deer headed for him just as he topped the last hill. Or should he want to hunt for birds he would take down his shot gun, and just as regularly he would find on arrival at the field that the dog had flushed a covey of quail.

One night when things were quiet the watchman decided to figure out some way to get the best of his dog. After considerable thought he hit upon the plan of taking a fishing trip, thinking that would be just about the best way to baffle his pup. The next day he got his fishing pole and traveled up the river. He stopped before a likely looking spot, reached into his pocket, drew out a half dollar and threw it in the water. Without a moment's hesitation this very smart dog jumped in, brought up a nice string of fish and with it 35 cents in change.

There are still a lot of girls who could put on all the sport clothes in the world and still be as tame as a gold fish.

We have found it that it is better to raise a whole lot of medium sized tomatoes than it is to raise a few big ones. It's also harder to raise the big ones.

At an experimental farm an attempt will be made to create a pig that will not sunburn. We never heard of a pig complaining about being sunburned. Oink! Oink!

Rufus—Tell me what time it is Goofus. I've got to catch that 2:30 train and I'm going to have a hard time to make it.

Goofus—Don't worry, Rufus. It's only 2:10. I set the clock back 30 minutes so's to give you more time.

DEAR Miss Markel—My husband and I were invited to dinner and accepted. Must we pay our host and hostess a call in the near future? Shall we leave cards if they are at home? In either case is one of my cards and two of my husband's the correct number to leave? If the people upon whom we are calling are in shall the cards be presented when the maid answers the door or placed upon a table or tray provided for the purpose, before we leave?—L. L.

Answer—Although the dinner or party call is not now so strictly adhered to as it was in former years, it should, nevertheless, be made upon the hostess in whose home one has taken a meal for the first time. Such a call should be made within a few days and not later than a week after the dinner.

One of your cards for the hostess and two of your husband's—one for the host and one for the hostess—should be left. If you are admitted by a servant, give him or her your cards as you enter the door. If there is no servant present, leave your cards as you go out. Usually, a tray is placed on a hall table for this purpose.

After you have taken dinner in someone's home, do not that same evening when you leave issue an invitation for her to dine with you. Wait about a week or so and then invite her to come to your home.

The World At A Glance

See World Economic Meeting.
Will Precede Peace Gathering.
May Invite Roosevelt To Call Meet.

By LESLIE EICHEL
Central Press Staff Writer

A WORLD PEACE meeting is not so likely to occur as a world economic meeting. There can be no world peace without economic peace first.

American business interests are becoming more insistent for an economic conference. The automobile industry, alone, could vastly increase its exports—if there were economic peace. But economic peace is requisite upon reciprocity. A great deal of prejudice is being stirred up against reciprocity. Why, no international businessman can explain—except that nationalistic prejudices die hard.

EUROPEAN SHIFTS

Italy and Germany stand together for the moment in supporting the Spanish rebels as advancing the Fascist cause.

But, according to word from overseas, Italy already is alarmed over Germany's efforts to overspread all of middle Europe. Poland, too, now is said to be as fearful over the Nazi might on one side as the Soviet might on the other side. Thus, France—which had been pushed up against the wall for the last few weeks, crowded by Germany and Italy and their cohorts—again may find Poland and Italy leaning to her side.

In England, a great cry has arisen that if the Spanish Loyalists are defeated, France and England will fall next before fascism.

But England is hopeful of isolating herself—at least, until she gets more planes built.

WAR IN THE AIR

The Spanish civil war is giving a test to planes. The rebels probably have the best—presumably from Italy.

They have not done much real damage, but they have reduced the morale of the civil population.

Yet, suppose the 50 or 100 planes at the rebels' disposal were 500 or 1,000? That is what the major nations could fling at each other. The damage would be tremendous. A country could be wrecked.

It is assumable, therefore, that an entire war could be fought with planes, provided oil were not cut off. And such a war could be declared quickly and action begun instantly.

Italy now has a powerful air force. But so save France and the Soviet Union. Germany's air force is unknown.

The British are building planes rapidly.

Planes are a temptation to war. They can be moved into action quickly.

On the other hand, if planes are repeatedly shot down in Spain—as has not yet been the case—nations may begin to talk softer, and of peace.

The test is being observed closely.

THAT PEACE CALL

Incidentally, the peace congress which rumor says President Roosevelt may call if re-elected, might be traced to a speech of George Lansbury, noted English Laborite, in London.

Mr. Lansbury urged that the Kellogg pact should be put into operation immediately by France, Great Britain and the United States, the three great democracies.

Mr. Lansbury added that President Roosevelt should be invited to call a world peace conference.

This is as the Manchester Guardian reports it:

"From somewhere in the world," Mr. Lansbury said, "there must come, if mankind is to be saved, a call which will be heard by all the governments of the world, demanding that before it is too late and the end has been reached representatives of the nations shall gather together and make a supreme effort to prevent the appalling disaster which threatens to overwhelm us all.

"I wish Great Britain would make this gesture and declare her willingness to put her all on the altar of common service in order to start the world along the road of true cooperation. Britain has ever done her share and more than her share in exploiting and developing great portions of the world for her own national glory and could not be considered as quite disinterested. So I turn to the president and people of the United States."

Mr. Lansbury said that he knew

NEW YORK, Sept. 10—All the gals are wearing their liquor well these days. When business took me through the aisles of one of the big department stores the other morning I was astonished by the following conversation:

"Which does madame prefer? The champagne, the Dubonnet or the dark claret?"

"Let's see that absinthe over there, please. I love absinthe and so few of the stores carry it."

I peered at the transaction with male obtuseness until it dawned on me that colors were being discussed and that a highly respectable customer was buying herself a fall bib and tucker.

Loretta Clemens, the songstress, swears that she had a clique assembled in her village chateau the other night to discuss the state of the world. Loretta had just been inhaling the darkling gush of Mr. William Saroyan's "Inhale and Exhale" and she was impressed and puzzled by the time.

"I'd like to meet that man," she announced, fondling the book dreamily.

The doorbell rang. It was the maid's night off, so she answered it herself. The hall was vacant, but a card had been pushed under her door. It read:

"W. SAROYON—Rugs and Carpets."

That firm of flag-makers in lower Fifth Avenue, the largest manufacturers of ensigns and banners in the world, has been busily at work lately on a $500 personal flag for Father Divine, the negro evangelist from Harlem.

The banner will be huge—40 by 60 feet—and presumably the sepia cleric will fly it from his uptown temple where corn pone, fried chicken and "pawk chops" are rumored to appear miraculously to the hungry, emblazoned with Father Divine's likeness, with gold leaf trimmings and much hand embroidery.

"I'm de Lawd and dis am John de Revelator," announced Father Divine when he walked into the shop arm in arm with a dusky companion to order his flag. Indeed, he brings to real life some of the haunting lilt of "The Green Pastures."

His credit, by the way, is excellent in any store in New York.

Fortune Gallo (add romantic-sounding names for a permanent check-list), the opera enthusiast and theatrical angel is one of the town's top-flight bird fanciers. Has been for years, and the Bronx Zoo has received specimens from him and even called him into consultation on rare species.

A few years back he bought a flock of swans and took them to Jones Beach to add color to that spruce concrete-and-white-sand resort. The birds were fussy, however and refused to swim in salt water. Gallo took them to the Randall's Island stadium where a series of musical extravaganzas are in progress with his Chicago operatic troupe for background.

Already he had a flock of peacocks in attendance at Randall's Island. These were removed and almost immediately the rain which had spoiled performances for weeks in the open-air arena ceased to dampen the spectators. Special ponds have been dug for the swans and they move from one to the other with a vast wing-flapping at intervals during each performance.

'Alley Rats' Look Ahead Once More To Camp Reunion

High School 'Pals' Of Earlier Day Await September 24 Outing

Camp Ne-Ca-Hi, Senior high school's football training camp at Muddy Creek falls, will be the scene for the annual reunion on September 24, of the "Alley Rats," group of prominent New Castle business and professional men who were high school friends of an earlier day.

The camp celebration is an annual affair. Entertainment of all kinds always marks the day.

The name of "Alley Rats" was adopted by the organization because most of the high school merrymaking of the group was in an alley nearby the present North Street school, then the New Castle high school.

AROUND CITY HALL

Some time today city officials of New Castle in attendance at the convention of the Cities of the Third class will take up with officials of other Third class cities the questions of a bond for city treasurers and pensions for police. Last winter the city council here opposed paying what they alleged a high cost for a treasurer's bond. Relative to pensions the council favors a system whereby police will draw money after their days of usefulness as guardians of law and order end.

Officials of the city are hopeful that good weather continues so that the street improvement program here can be carried out. The top surface has been laid in South Mercer street.

Dr. William L. Steen has informed council that following two days investigation he discovered the source of the sewer trouble in Quest street. The health officer said the trouble came from a stoppage in a private sanitary sewer. Orders to clear the sewer will be given, he said.

It is hoped that efforts of the police to protect school children from accident will receive the cooperation of the motor-going public. No one in their right mind would want to injure a child. Autoists should not speed.

THE PARENT PROBLEM

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

HOLDING INTEREST

"Dear Sir: Would you please send me some information on how we can best keep the children of today interested in Sunday school? I am most concerned about the intermediate grade."

Answer: To interest children in Sunday school work we need teachers in Sunday school who can make the lesson attractive, and fathers and mothers who don't send their children to Sunday school, but who go with them every Sunday morning. As in day school, regular attendance is essential to stimulate and maintain interest.

For the primary and intermediate grades there ought to be lots of hand work and dramatic activities. More action and expression by the children and far less sermonizing by the teacher is sadly needed in most Sunday school classes.

Fortunately the lesson helps are gradually growing more interesting; yet most of them need to be supplemented and enriched from other than Bible literature. Many children like to learn to tell Bible stories, and most parents would be glad to have their children know these stories. Also children under 12 rather like to commit to memory verses and even whole chapters from the Bible, when their activity is properly stimulated. I wish more teachers would inspire children to such mastery, and would moralize less and preach less from the "lesson". Children soon tire of talks by teachers, grow inattentive, perhaps mischievous. At that moment they would be better on the home playground.

Stories Easily Dramatized.

The Bible contains a rich array of stories which can be easily dramatized. A class of boys and girls can profitably and joyously work for several weeks at Sunday school writing a play from one of these great stories, and making the costumes and scenery, provided they can give the play before their assembly, or an older group.

Then the group or department assembly period offers rich opportunities for varied and interesting programs by the children themselves, directed and planned, as far as possible, by the children. With the development of orchestras and choirs in the public schools nowadays, almost every department of the Sunday school can have its own orchestra or choir, quartets, duets, solos. Even the primary department can do much in this direction. And there might be some whistling selections.

Then there can be brief Bible readings (preferably from memory) by individual children, or by groups in concert. Too bad that adult leaders impose themselves upon the children and preach them wearisome sermons. I hope they get punished for it by and by. In most groups there is ample leadership among the children.

LOSE FAT THE EASY WAY

Without Starvation Diets, or Back-Breaking, Bending and Rolling Exercises.

Here's a way to get rid of ugly fat that works hand in hand with Nature. Millions of people are losing millions of pounds of flabby flesh and getting back slender figures, without the need of starvation diets or back-breaking exercises.

Medical science has discovered that one of the causes of too much fat lies in a little gland. It is the duty of this tiny gland to make about one drop and a half every day of a vital fluid. This helps the body "burn" up food and excess fatty tissues just as a good draft of air helps the furnace to burn up coal without forming "clinkers." If this little gland doesn't make this drop and a half of fluid every 24 hours, many people take on ugly fat.

Doctors correct this condition by feeding this little gland the substance it lacks—and Marmola Prescription Tablets are based on this same method. Millions are using them with success. They are prepared by a world-famous medical laboratory. Their formula is published in every package so you know what you are taking.

So don't waste time and money with starvation diets or back-breaking exercises. Go to your druggist today and get a box of Marmola. Try this simple, easy way to get rid of excess fat.

McCORMICK-BRADEN WEDDING BRILLIANT

A New Castle girl, Miss Grace Vanderlin, played the traditional processional and recessional wedding marches for the wedding in Butler Wednesday evening of Mildred McCormick to Dr. Frank R. Braden, Jr., which was a brilliant event in the First Methodist Episcopal church, at 7:30.

Mrs. J. D. Stark, an aunt of the bride, sang a group of two selections, "All for You," by Easthope Martin, and "I Love You Truly," by Carrie Jacobs Bond.

The bride wore white velvet, the gown being made with cowl neck, gathered waist and long full skirt ending in a court train. Her veil was of tulle, fashioned with a tiara cap, and her flowers were gardenias and white orchids.

She was given in marriage by her father, and had her recently married sister, Mrs. N. E. Brown, Jr., as her matron of honor. The latter was costumed in a floor length aquamarine velvet, with high neck and long sleeves. Her flowers were yellow roses.

Miss Marie Stark, of Erie, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor, wearing dusty pink moire, floor length, and her bouquet was made up of pink roses and delphinium. Little Sally Van Ryn, another cousin of the bride, was flower girl, dressed in a long Kate Greenaway frock of pink net with which a colonial bouquet harmonized.

Dr. Braden's father was his best man, and the ushers were A. C. Dick, of Elizabeth, N. J., J. F. Ferguson, Dr. D. V. Thompson and Dr. W. H. Stewart, all of Coraopolis.

The double ring ceremony was used with the Rev. H. A. Baum, pastor of the church, officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. McCormick, of the Saxonburg road, and Dr. Braden's parents are Dr. and Mrs. F. R. Braden, Sr., of Coraopolis. All are known in New Castle.

A wedding reception was held in the McCormick home for 100 guests. A buffet supper was served and the wedding cake, with the customary bride and groom, was otherwise unusual, in that it had a layer of fruit cake, which is to be kept and eaten on the first wedding anniversary.

The newlyweds are on a honeymoon to Canada, concluding which they will reside in Coraopolis.

Partial Victory For French Premier Blum

(International News Service)

PARIS, Sept. 10.—With the formal declaration of the Communist organ "Humanite" that the party will take no action that might break up the leftist coalition, Premier Leon Blum today emerged victor in at least the first round of his battle with radicals demanding aid for the Spanish Loyalists.

A rebuke to Maurice Thorez, Communist secretary-general, by the Socialist party and general confederation of labor, which repudiated attempts to coerce Blum into abandonment of his non-intervention policy, apparently moved the Communists to modify their pro-Madrid stand.

In a significant page on editorial in Humanite today, Editor Marcel Cachin sought to reassure the Socialists with the plea that "common action is now necessary to save France from fascism."

Fascists, he said, expect to break up the leftist union, "but the Communists will not lend their aid to this game.

"The action of an intact front is more than ever necessary, and Communists will not forget this primary duty."

This apparent backdown from communism's extreme interventionist attitude has so far not affected the protest strikes now gaining impetus throughout the country, however. In spite of demands of the rightist press that the government force the strikers to evacuate the occupied factories, it was considered unlikely, following a conference between Premier Blum and Interior Minister Roger Salengro, that any action would be taken at present.

Instead, the government will content itself with its temporary victory in favor of the non-intervention policy, which has the support of the Labor Federation and Socialists.

The Labor Confederation disavowed the pro-Madrid strikes, now involving more than 50,000 industrial workers in Marseilles, Lille, and other cities, while the Socialist administrative commission likewise decided to abandon methods of force to end the munitions embargo.

Later Caesar, going the other way to add Gaul to Roman territory, wrote his name in history books. Then Napoleon, a man of Caesar's Italian blood, came from North to South to conquer Italy and Austria. He crossed the Alps in the deep snow of winter, saying:

"I deserve credit only for not believing fools who said it could not be done."

Next locomotives, with steam power came through the tunnel that man had dug under the Alps. That seemed the final possibility, but two American mechanics worked at a "contraption" that flew.

Now, those in a hurry fly over the Alps, as a matter of course, and as this is written, Mussolini, Italain ruler, authorizes an increase in Italy's regular fighting air force to thirty-seven thousand two hundred men.

Those 37,200, with the right flying, bombing and gassing equipment, might conquer all the nations of the earth, if the other nations were all quietly sleeping in golden security, as the United States is sleeping.

Soon our oceans will mean, for protection, as little as the Alps now mean to Italy, or the channel to England. Somebody, eventually, will make that discovery unpleasantly.

COMING underneath the mountains into Italy, your train enters a new world, created by the Roman-Italian race two thousand years ago, re-created, with new and boundless energy, by Mussolini.

Seeing what he has done and what Italians are doing, you wonder whether nations like men must die in old age or whether they wait only for the man of power to restore lost youth. Time and history will answer your question.

THE VALLEYS beyond the tunnel are narrow, with steep green or rocky walls rising on either side. Where there is soil on the rocks, and the hill is not too steep for a man to walk and work, every inch is cultivated.

Where it is too steep, the hills have been terraced, the terraces held up by rock walls many more than twenty feet high that were built, long ago, to gain a few square feet of level ground.

Everywhere vineyards climb along the steeper hills for, to every Italian, a vineyard is as important as cows and hens. The iron of the grape taken with the red wine, shows in the ruddy complexions and powerful bodies of the Italians, the old included.

With less than half the fertile area of California, Italy must feed more than ten times California's population. They must work, hard, every day, in every generation.

EVERYWHERE on hill tops and mountain sides are ruins of castles and tall towers, built by proud nobles for their own grandeur and to give a refuge and protection to their workers in the valleys, outside the castle walls.

A high wall surrounds a great square, before a ruined castle. There the countryside took refuge, children, women and men, gratefully crowding in, to sleep on the ground, and drink water from the well protected castle well, when fierce bearded men came marauding through the passes from the north, or Saracens, Phoenicians, or Normans came prowling along the coast in their pirate ships, to kill and gather slaves.

The wall around that old castle still stands, but it could keep out no modern enemy. No ships with sharp beaks come to rob and murder. The next enemy will come from above, through the air, with cold scientific pilots high out of reach dropping bombs.

Walls no longer mean protection; grape vines, heavily laden, cover the court where frightened peasants once found refuge, beneath the spears and shields of fighters on the walls, and high in the castle tower above.

Georgia Approves New Deal Policies

Democratic Primary Winners Are Supporters Of 'New Deal"

(International News Service)

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 10.—Rolling up majorities that apparently reached proportions of a landslide, Sen. Richard B. Russell, Jr., and E. D. Rivers today received the Democratic nominations for United States senator and governor, respectively, in a state-wide Democratic primary that had been hailed as the first real test of the popularity of President Roosevelt's policies in the south.

Both Sen. Russell and Rivers based their campaigns on platforms endorsing the policies of the federal administration. Both were opposed by out-spoken critics of the nation's chief executive.

Sen. Russell was opposed for the senate nomination by the fiery Gov. Eugene Talmadge, he of the "red suspender" fame, whereas Rivers, who is speaker of the house, met his chief opposition in Charles Redwine, president of the state senate, who was sponsored in the gubernatorial race by Gov. Talmadge.

A third man, Judge Blanton Fortson, was in the governor's race, but he trailed far behind and Redwine, failing to get enough votes to throw the contest into a run-off.

the United States did not intend to entangle herself in any scheme for collective security based on force of arms. "In spite of all the past criticism of the United States because of her refusal to join the League of Nations, it can with truth be said that she is, so far as Europe is concerned, above the battle. Consequently her voice would be listened to with respect and, I believe, with approval. Some voice must make this call and, failing Great Britain, I think we may with justice ask the president of the United States to take this momentous task in hand."

Governor Landon, frugal exponent of the American way of life, approaches the election with no personal or dogmatic schedule for making America over. He harbors no glorified grudges against any section of the nation's social structure. He is intent upon only one accomplishment: serving the American people by organizing for those who pay the government's bills the most efficient and representative government possible.

This country has been led far enough along the dangerous path of personal government. The time has come when, for its own safety in a world of ferment, it must return to its historic course, the trail which it blazed to the attainment of the highest living standards, for the greatest number of people, in the annals of earth.

Governor Landon offers calm, reasoned leadership away from the perils of alien personal rule and back to the American system of representative government.

President Will Make Address This Afternoon

To Climax Tour Of Dixie With Speech At Charlotte, N. C.

FINE RECEPTION GIVEN IN SOUTH

By GEORGE DURNO
International News Service Staff Correspondent

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Sept. 10.—It's true what they say about Dixie.

Democratic Dixie, as is customary, apparently is going to cast its vote for President Roosevelt this fall.

With the president here deep in the heart of the south, Dixie went to some pains today and yesterday to demonstrate its affection for the chief executive.

His two-day stay below the Mason-Dixon line was to be climaxed this afternoon at Charlotte, N. C., where the president is scheduled to address a "green pastures rally," which, according to General Chairman Haywood Robbins, Jr., is designed "to make the south more solid for Franklin Roosevelt."

After a series of enthusiastic turn-outs in eastern Tennessee and western North Carolina, President Roosevelt accompanied only by his youngest son, John, Secretary Marvin H. McIntyre and the usual secret service operatives, newspaper men and photographers, spent the night here at Grove Park Inn.

He was scheduled to leave Asheville for Charlotte shortly before noon, but first he had consented to make an informal appearance at McCormick Field, the local ball park, and say a few extemporaneous words.

Consumer Survey Continuing Here

Staff Of Local Persons Gathering Data For U. S. Labor Department

A staff of 40 employes has been busily engaged in New Castle since March 23, 1936, in collecting data for the United States Department of Labor for the Consumer Purchases Survey. The complete staff in New Castle collection office is comprised of men and women from Lawrence county, the majority being from the city of New Castle. Each two weeks the pay roll for this federal project puts into circulation in this community approximately $1,650.00.

The Consumer Purchase Survey, as it is called, is the realization of a project envisioned about seven years ago by groups both within and without governmental ranks. The Social Science Research Council and the Chamber of Commerce of the United States have long urged the desirability of such a study. Funds available through the Works Progress Administration made the research possible this year.

Some questions to be answered are: What influence do the size of family, occupation, or income, the size of the city, the geographic area, urban vs. rural characteristics, have on expenditures?

How is the food and clothing budget split among component items? What price line is purchased by each income group?

How many have purchased new and used cars? What makes and for what year? What have they spent for operation of their cars?

How much do families in different income brackets spend for hospitals, medicine, operations, doctors, funerals? For recreation, vacations, sport equipment, etc? For personal care—haircuts, cosmetics, dentifrices? For education and reading matter?

What home equipment do they own—sewing machines, pressure cookers, refrigerators, pianos, etc.

What do they sav per year?

The scope of the project makes it improbable that any data will become available before early 1937.

To Banish Banners On State Highways

Political Banners Or Signs Prohibited On Highways Says Shaw

No signs or banners advertising any candidate for office or any political parties will be permitted over state highways or on posts or fences within the property lines of the state highways in Lawrence county according to a statement made today by John B. Shaw, superintendent of highways in this county.

"There has been some discussion in past weeks over banners that have been hung over state highways" said Mr. Shaw. "There have also been requests made to me for permission to hang political signs over state highways and to tack cards on posts in state highway property. These have been refused and all such requests will be refused in the future."

"The state law prohibits such practices and I intend to see that we do not violate this law in Lawrence county. In order to make the matter plain to all persons who are either candidates or are interested in the welfare of candidates or political parties I am making this statement."

"This means all state highways whether they be in the rural areas or main streets in cities over which state highways pass. We are charged with certain duties in the maintenance of state highways running over city streets and the prohibition against banners is county wide in scope insofar as Lawrence county is concerned."

Outdoor Feast Starts Friday

St. Vitus Feast Will Be Observed On Friday And Saturday

ELABORATE PLANS ARE COMPLETED

Italian-American residents of New Castle and rural districts will honor the patron saint of St. Vitus church Friday and Saturday, September 11 and 12, with an elaborate St. Vitus day festival. General Chairman Angelo Chill announced today that everything is in readiness for the final outdoor celebration of the season here.

Six large bombs, which will be discharged from the B. & O. field, Friday afternoon, will serve as a signal that the celebration has started. From then, until Saturday evening, a colorful two-day program will be presented. At 7:30 o'clock, tomorrow evening, in St. Vitus church, corner South Jefferson and Maitland streets, vespers in honor of St. Vitus will be conducted. Following the church services, a band concert will be presented on the attractive band stand which has been erected on the corner of East Home street, and South Jefferson street.

Saturday Program

The program will continue Saturday morning with another discharge of six bombs and a string battery. Two masses will be celebrated in honor of St. Vitus, the first at 8:30 o'clock, with the Rev. Fr. Anuskiewicz, officiating. High mass will follow at 9:30 o'clock, with the Rev. Fr. Nicholas DeMita, as celebrant. During the morning hours, the Red Coat band, under the direction of B. J. Biondi, will parade through the principal streets in the city, offering some of the well known selections.

One of the highlights of the afternoon program will be an athletic program, starting at 4 o'clock, on South Jefferson street. Winners in various events will receive valuable prizes. Saturday night at 7:30 o'clock, closing vespers will be conducted in St. Vitus church. Rev. Fr. DeMita will be in charge of the services.

A concert will feature the evening program. The Red Coat band, under Mr. Biondi's direction, will present a number of the leading selections. During the progress of the concert, several New Castle citizens will address the crowd. The concert will end at 11:30 o'clock. A colorful fireworks display, by Vitale Fireworks company, will climax the last outdoor feast of the year.

The committee, which has been making arrangements for the event for the past month, expects several thousand persons to share the program prepared. The committee includes: Angelo Chill, chairman, Frank Mastrangelo, assistant chairman, Samuel Flors, Angelo Long, Nufrio Mosone, Angelo Calabrese, Alfonso Sanfelice.

WILL LEAVE FOR ATLANTIC CITY

Kiwanians Dine At Clark Home

Hamburg Fry Enjoyed By Members And Wives; Host Is Chef

At the Walmo home of Mr. and Mrs. Norman E. Clark, members of the Kiwanis club and their ladies and guests assembled last night for a hamburg fry and a program which featured musical numbers and bingo playing.

The group of 80 or more took dinner at tables spread over the beautiful lawn at the home. The role of chief chef was filled by Mr. Clark and for assistants he had Orville Potter and Zeno Pfau. Another group of assistants served.

Songs by a local musical trio were enjoyed during the after-dinner program and then bingo was taken up. Before that there was pep singing led by William Reed.

Supervising the general arrangements were: Mr. Clark, Lyle C. Hughes and Dr. A. G. Reynolds, the special committee named to handle outdoor Kiwanis affairs during the summer.

Workmen Have Narrow Escape

Dynamite Blast Rocks Plant At Cincinnati, Ohio, This Morning

(International News Service)

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 10.—Approximately 70 workmen in the Remington-Rand factory in Norwood narrowly escaped injury or death today when a dynamite blast rocked the building, shattering window panes in all parts of the plant.

The dynamite apparently was hurled from the yard of a near-by house and fell just short of a factory wall. The explosion shook the building, and the detonation was heard in all parts of the city.

Workmen, engaged in dismantling machinery in the factory where a bitter strike has been in progress for weeks, were working on the far side of the factory from the point where the dynamite exploded.

Details of police were hurried to the factory where company guards have been stationed for weeks as a precaution against recurring violence. They reported no clues to the identity of the dynamiter.

Condemnation of the act was expressed by Milton Van Frank, business agent of the local machinists union, who said he believed it was the work of a crank who had no connection with the labor organization.

Governor Earle Claims State For Roosevelt

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 10—Pennsylvania will go for President Roosevelt in November, Gov. George H. Earle predicted today in keynoting the opening of the Democratic organization's drive for the re-election of the Roosevelt-Garner ticket, and nominees for state posts.

The Pennsylvania executive said that Allegheny county will give President Roosevelt a majority of 125,000 over Governor Alf M. Landon, the Republican presidential nominee.

"All through the southwestern section—Fayette, Greene, Allegheny, Westmoreland and the industrial counties in the central section will come to the mountains with a 200,000 majority vote for President Roosevelt," Gov. Earle asserted.

Miss Johanna Kroupamp, teacher at the South school in Potchefstroom, South Africa, has retired after 50 years at the one institution. When the school was established in 1896 she went there as a pupil and subsequently carried on with one or two women assistant teachers during the Boer war when all the men of the staff were commandeered by the Boers.

Millions For Student Aid

Approximately $19,000,000 To Be Distributed Through N. Y. A.

MONTHLY EARNING RATES UNCHANGED

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—With special emphasis laid on extension of aid to boys and girls of families stricken by the drought, the National Youth Administration this week will pour more than $19,000,000 into the coffers of state NYA offices to be re-distributed for educational aid purposes.

This was announced today by Richard Brown, deputy executive NYA director, as NYA released funds for drought, student aid and work programs.

The allotments were made for a three-months period only, and were so made to start funds moving quickly in order to prevent the delay which last year prevented many students from receiving aid until well after the school year had started. Special quotas for the drought areas resulted in from 10 to 60 per cent increases in those sectors.

Monthly earnings allowed students were unchanged, with a $6 maximum set for high school students, and averages of $15 and $25 respectively for college undergraduates and graduate students.

Expect Permit For Further Work On Armory Here

Authority to proceed with the work of erection of the riding hall and stables of the new Joseph V. Cunningham armory is expected shortly by the Works Progress Administration it was said today. A supplemental project has been in for some time and when it is approved the work of fully completing the armory will be under way.

The work of building the administration unit is proceeding slowly. The building of the walls is almost completed and with the approval of the supplemental project the work of completing the armory will be expedited.

Body Of Erie Woman Is Found Floating In Bay

(International News Service)

ERIE, Pa., Sept. 10.—Discovery of the body of Miss Margaret Wiley, 48, in a bay at the foot of Chestnut street here, today ended a search for the woman, who disappeared from her home five days ago.

Relatives informed police Miss Wiley had been despondent since the death of her mother a year ago, and Deputy Coroner Charles Leone said no inquest will be held.

The body, badly decomposed, was turned over to Miss Wiley's family for burial. She is survived by four brothers and two sisters.

Seven boys, scarlet fever victims, took their school examinations in the isolation hospital at Kendal, England. When their pens had finished coping with the posers the papers were disinfected and sent to the proper authorities. A master, duly disinfected, watched to prevent cribbing.

Air Passenger Service Across Pacific Planned

Approval To Be Given Project By U. S. Department Of Commerce

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Marking another milestone in the swift progress of aviation, the Commerce department today prepared to approve regular air passenger service across the Pacific.

A thorough inspection of Pan-American Airways facilities by the Air Commerce bureau prompted Secretary Roper to announce that official consent to inauguration of passenger flights between Oakland, Cal., and Manila, in the Philippines, would be given within 30 to 60 days.

At the same time, Roper revealed that agreements have been reached between this country and the governments of Canada, England, France and Germany which are expected to result in speedy development of the trans-Atlantic air lines.

Experimental flights from England to the United States will be conducted shortly by Imperial Airways, a British organization. Pan American Airways also is developing a trans-Atlantic service and preliminary work has started on an intermediate landing base at Iceland.

California Warned To Conserve Fine Natural Resources

Rich Central Valley Will Soon Be Desert If Not Taken Care Of World Power Conference Is Being Held In Washington, D. C.

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10. — A blunt warning that California's rich central valley will soon turn to a desert unless nature's laws are heeded, coupled with a concrete proposal for conservation of natural resources, featured today's session of the third world power conference here.

Two Americans, Stuart Chase and W. S. Finlay, Jr., the latter president of the West Penn Electric Company, sounded the warning and made the proposal, respectively. They agreed with other scientists, who presented papers showing that not only the United States, but the whole world, has come to the realization that soil, flowing water, and fuel must be conserved and replenished if nature is to continue serving mankind.

Has Raced Forward

The papers read today showed vividly how the world has raced forward thoughtlessly in technological development, paying little heed to the fact that nature's stores are exhaustible. They revealed, too, that scientists are driving home the necessity for conserving resources, and that governments at last are planning carefully for the future.

In California's central valley, Chase pointed out, exploitation of water supply has brought a resource planning problem whose alternatives are life or death for thousands who have prospered from the rich loam of the San Joaquin and Sacramento river valleys. Finlay proposed that power industries and professional groups supply working agencies for a conservation program, with government serving as coordinator.

Colorful Dinner

The conference program today will culminate tonight in a colorful dinner to be held in the Union station, utilized because no other place in the city could be found large enough to accommodate the huge gathering.

Highly technical discussions of foundation materials, and of the stability of earth dams occupied the second congress on large dams, meeting jointly with the power conference.

In the morning session discussions of natural resource planning, the work of President Roosevelt came in for especial praise. Chase particularly singled out accomplishments of the present administration as hopeful signs of an awakened public realization of the necessity of planning for the future.

Constructive Work

"Constructive work going forward in America today gives further evidence of the capacity of the American people to modify the human institutions which are the limiting factor in resource planning," wrote Chase. "This is exemplified by the national resources committee, the Tennessee valley authority, the soil conservation corps, the resettlement administration, the public works administration, and the rural electrification administration.

"If and when the American people understand the extent to which nature has been thrust out of equilibrium, and the very grave penalties attached, it is reasonable to suppose that their institutions will be altered to a point where, with the consent of the governed, effective and conclusive action can be taken.

"Fortunately, it is not too late."

Issues Warning

David Cushman Coyle, consulting engineer, warned against the dangers of disregarding nature's danger signals.

"The principles of resource planning," he wrote, "are: (1) to hold soil, water, forest and grass at par, and (2) to economize in the use of the irreplaceable minerals by every possible means.

"Nature lays down the terms; we must obey or suffer. We can come to terms with nature in regard to the self-renewing resources by using them only as fast as they are replaced. In regard to the non-replaceable minerals, we can come to terms only by finding new and abundant substitutes faster than we can use the older materials. Technology races with waste."

Court Trial Too Much For Woman

Woman Rushes From Greensburg Court Room During Testimony

(International News Service)

GREENSBURG, Sept. 10.—As counsel for her husband delivered an impassioned plea for acquittal, Mrs. Joseph Burns, 26-year-old Arnold housewife, rushed sobbing from the courtroom here today with her three children.

Mrs. Burns, a diminutive blond who blames a "love tonic" for the tragic crisis in which her husband killed her paramour, hurried out as Attorney Clifford Smith pleaded the "unwritten law" as justification for the knifing of Louis Tishky, 33, of Aliquippa.

Visibly wracked by the nervous strain of the trial, Mrs. Burns could endure it no longer when Smith shouted:

"Joe came home one night. . . . He peeked in and saw Tishky and his wife on the davenport. . . . When he got in the lights were out."

Earlier in the trial, Mrs. Burns took the witness stand and admitted indiscretions with Tishky. In an attempt to save her husband she testified that she was solely to blame for the crime.

Deeply touched by the dramatic incident, jurors and spectators alike fingered handkerchiefs as the children returned to the courtroom, ran to their father and began kissing him desperately.

Slot Machine "Legality" Is Police Puzzle

Police In Erie Seize 176 Machines In Early Morning Raid

(International News Service)

ERIE, Pa., Sept. 10.—A debatable point of law as to the "legality" of slot machines today brought city police face to face with a serious delemma as they guarded 176 of the devices seized early this morning.

Two policemen making an early morning patrol came upon five men attempting to jimmy the door of a building. The men fled in a truck when the officers approached. Investigating, the policemen found the building to contain 176 slot machines of a type supposed to be "legal" under a recent ruling by Judge Miles B. Kitts in county court.

Placing the machines under guard, Chief of Police George Christoph and Assistant District Attorney Burton Laub left at once for Meadville to confer with District Attorney Mortimer E. Graham, vacationing there. It was said Christoph wished to obtain Graham's advice as to the procedure to take with regard to the slot machines.

State police admit to being only faintly interested in the seizure, though officers said they would inspect the machines today "out of curiosity."

Today's seizure of the machines is the second in the last three weeks. At that time state police raided another building, believed to be the headquarters of a gambling syndicate, and seized $5,000 worth of "pin ball" machines. The machines taken today were thought to be part of a shipment of 400 transported here from Ohio.

Police assert Erie is a "battleground" for machine operators, with "sweet pickings" as the stake.

New McCartney Book Interesting

"Not Far From Pittsburgh" An Interesting History Of This District

From Pittsburgh has just come an interesting little volume by Dr. Clarence E. McCartney, of Pittsburgh, a series of historical tales laid in western Pennsylvania and titled "Not Far From Pittsburgh."

Not a large volume it yet contains a wealth of interesting lore of the Pittsburgh district, of the hills of western Pennsylvania, and of the territory within a radius of 100 miles.

Reading it one can imagine himself sitting down with Dr. McCartney in some shady spot and listening to him talk of this wonderfully historic part of the United States. The history of Harmony of Moravia, of Canonsburg and Jefferson College, of Albert Gallatin and the "Fighting" McCooks, of Blackhawk and Braddock, John Brown and James A. Garfield twenty two chapters of history which unfolds with all the drama and suspense of a novel.

It is worth while work, this new volume of Dr. McCartney's

One portion of it is given over to a discussion of the old canal that ran to New Castle and which was to have gone on to the lake. In those days the trip from Pittsburgh by boat to New Castle required 12 hours and cost $1.62 and as one reads it the creak of the canal boat and the plodding of the mules seems not so far away.

No More Piles

Doctor's Prescription Guaranteed

Thousands of Pile sufferers do not know that the cause of Piles is internal—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel.

This is the scientific truth about Piles—the real reason why salves and suppositories do not give lasting relief, why cutting does not remove the cause.

Your itching, bleeding or protruding Piles will only go when you actually remove the cause. External treatments can't do this—an internal medicine should be used. HEM-ROID the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, sold by good druggists everywhere, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, drives out congested blood, heals and restores the affected parts.

So why waste time on external remedies or worry about an operation when Eckerd's Cut Rate and New Castle Drug Co., invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID with guarantee of money back if not joyfully satisfied with the help one bottle gives.

Seek To Change Guardians For Wealthy Youth

Philip James Davidson, Ordered To Pay 11-Day Bride Sum Of $500 Monthly

(International News Service)

BEAVER, Pa., Sept. 10.—A petition asking for a change of guardians for 20-year-old Philip James Davidson, wealthy society youth, paying his estranged wife $500 a month for support, was filed in Beaver county court today.

As custodian of Davidson's estate, estimated at about $1,500,000, the Commonwealth Trust Company petitioned for the dismissal as guardians of Theodore F. Smith, Davidson's step-father, and Herbert A. May, his uncle.

Smith, secretary of the Oliver Iron and Steel Company, and May, a wealthy Pittsburgh socialite, were appointed by orphans court after Davidson's father died in action in the World War. The Commonwealth Trust alleged the guardians have not filed bond as directed. The defendants have until September 21 to file answers.

Davidson eloped with Dorothy Logan Moore, daughter of an Eminence, Ky., dry goods store proprietor, last March. After an 11-day honeymoon, the couple separated, and early this month Davidson was ordered to pay his 11-day bride $500 a month for support.

Labor Service Army Parades Before Hitler

Some 43,000 Armed With Spades Stand At Attention Before Chancellor

By PIERRE J. HUSS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NUREMBERG, Germany, Sept. 10—While 43,000 members of the labor service "army" stood at attention before him, armed with spades instead of guns, Chancellor Adolf Hitler today hailed the spade as "the symbol of the people's community" and decried conditions in "countries where Marxism fights."

"Generation after generation will from now on have borne the spade on their shoulders, regardless of class or birth. All will have to learn how to work."

Praising the value of such community labor, Hitler continued:

"See what beautiful things have been accomplished here, and then look at the countries assailing us, where Marxism fights.

"There villages and churches have been destroyed. Class fights against class. Brother no longer understands brother.

"I, instead of tearing you apart, have brought you together."

Two thousand of those before Hitler were stripped to the waist. A colorful parade of the 43,000 preceded the address, the workers drilling before their fuehrer and 90,000 others on Zeppelin Meadow in military pageantry.

McClure Fiction

Halla caught her breath sharply. "Is he dead?" she asked in a low voice.

THORNE sat on a granite shelf over a sheer drop of five hundred feet. Far below him the Rhone cut its deep trench right across the map. Beyond was a chaos of rugged pinnacles and rising snow fields.

He turned again to his climb. When he looked up he saw that he wasn't alone on the mountain. Half-way up the face was a party of three, moving one at a time and making slow work of it. The climber in the middle of the rope, a woman, was in difficulties on the harder pitches.

It was just under the last pitch that he overtook them. He gave them a hail. They'd move aside now and let him pass, as the etiquette of the mountains demanded.

The last man on the rope turned around. The guide, obviously. He growled something in guttural German to those above. The leader turned sharply and looked at Thorne, but instead of standing aside he climbed up to the next pitch. The woman didn't turn her head and the party went forward, ignoring Thorne.

He found a sloping ledge and sat down to watch them. The leader was wiry and tall and carried himself with a stiff erectness. He had a face that fitted the surroundings—hard as granite, with eyes cold and blue as the glacier ice.

Then Thorne looked at the woman and was surprised to see that she was only a girl. It didn't seem reasonable somehow that a girl should be climbing with those two. Her dark little head and delicate features weren't at all the sort of thing you'd expect in a German climbing woman.

They were on a slab twenty feet high, tilted at an angle not far from the perpendicular, with no holds to speak of. The slab was split from top to bottom by a crack a few inches wide. In it the leader wedged his foot and knee, then jammed his arm in by thrusting it further back. Foot by foot he hitched his way up, left arm and leg in the crack and right leg and arm scraping for friction holds on the rough granite outside. Finally, he drew himself over the edge.

Then it was the girl's turn and Thorne's hands clenched in sympathy as she started up. She managed to get half-way, fighting for every inch. The leader, poised unconcernedly above, called down instructions in the harsh staccato of a drill sergeant. Then she stuck. The arm in the crack refused to pull her higher, the other hand fluttered desperately over the rock in search of the holds that weren't there. From above came a strident crescendo of command but her convulsive response raised her no higher. Her arm began to relax.

Thorne half started to his feet. Why didn't that fool of a leader order the guide up to give her a shoulder? Why—?

He heard an exclamation from the man above. The latter braced himself with one foot against a projecting rock and heaved powerfully on the rope. The girl came away from her holds and hung limp, her feet dangling. Hand over hand the leader brought her up and Thorne marvelled at the sheer strength of it. But more than that he felt an urgent sympathy for the girl. When she was safe the guide climbed swiftly to the top. The three disappeared from Thorne's sight

A few minutes later he joined them on the flat table top of the summit. The girl was sitting with her arms around her knees. The leader greeted Thorne with a civil enough "Gruss Gott" and added something else.

"I do not speak German," said Thorne.

The girl raised her head and gave him a quick look. For a moment their eyes met, then she turned away.

WHEN Thorne came down to dinner that night he thought at first that he had the inn to himself. But soon a party appeared and took their places at a table across the room. Two were the couple he had seen on the mountain. With them was a woman of sixty-odd.

When they were settled the man looked up and recognized Thorne. He bowed rigidly and said something to the older woman. Turning her head without moving her shoulders, she stared coolly at Thorne across the empty room. The girl, too, glanced in his direction.

Thorne decided to loaf next day. After breakfast he strolled down the sloping pastures toward the lookout on the brink of the cliff.

On the pathway that led down to the surface of the Great Aletsch Glacier he saw two figures that he recognized as the German and the guide. As he watched them he heard a sound on the terrace behind him and turned to see the girl.

"Morgen," he said.

She looked at him for a moment in silence, then: "You're an American, aren't you?" she said.

"Yes," he said. "My name's Thorne Ashley."

"Mine's Halla Linden. I'm American too. I—I hope you don't mind my speaking to you. I haven't talked with anyone from home for so long."

"Then you've lived abroad since you've been married?" he asked.

"I've lived abroad for three years. But I'm not married. Not yet."

He looked up and saw the older woman coming down the path from the inn. When she reached them she said something in German to Halla. The girl replied in a voice that had gone suddenly flat and lifeless, then introduced Thorne. "Frau von Felsen," she added, "is the mother of my fiancé."

Thorne bowed. For an awkward moment Frau von Felsen stared at him, then bowing stiffly she spoke again to Halla and the two of them turned and walked toward the house.

* * * * *

AS HE walked quickly up the path that Halla had just taken Thorne glanced back almost furtively toward the inn. He had an odd feeling of doing something clandestine. He had seen Halla alone scarcely three times in the week and then for only a few minutes. All that he knew about her was that she used to live in America and now she was going to marry this von Felsen.

She was sitting on a rock out of sight of the inn. When she saw him she looked startled and made a motion as if to jump up. Then she smiled and sank back, waiting for him to speak.

How lovely she was!

Suddenly he said the thing he had come here to say: "Why are you unhappy?"

She caught her breath and looked at him for a moment with frightened eyes, then turned away without replying. "I'm afraid," she whispered finally.

"Afraid of what? Of him? Why do you marry him then?"

"Because there's nothing else to do."

"Why not?"

"I told him I'd marry him—before my father died. I thought I wanted to, then. And it made father happy to think that Kurt would be there to look after me."

"Isn't there any one else to take care of you?" he asked.

She shook her head, then raised it, looking at him steadily. "You must think I'm a fool," she said, "to talk about my troubles like this. But it's been so awful, not having anyone to tell things to."

"Tell me," said Thorne. "I like it."

"You see," she went on after a little while, "Germany was the place I always dreamed about and wanted to see. Father—he was a German before he was naturalized—used to tell me all about it. And I wanted awfully to come and see it all.

"Then my aunt who took care of me when I was little, died, and father and I came over here to live. I liked it almost as much as I thought I would, at first. I guess I was too young to realize then that there are two Germanies, that lovely old one and—and the one Kurt belongs to. Only then I thought he was the old kind. Maybe it was because I met him in the gardens along the Neckar. And yet that was less than a year ago.

"When father died Frau von Felsen came and took me back to Berlin. I've been living with them. And I've made excuses and excuses to put off marrying Kurt—and now I can't any more."

She stood up abruptly. "I must go back. Forgive me, will you?" She held out her hand.

Thorne rose and put a hand on each of her shoulders. There was no longer any confusion in his mind. "Halla," he said, "will you go back to America with me?"

For an instant her eyes met his, her lips parted, then he saw that she was looking over his shoulder and he felt her body stiffen under his hands. He turned. In the path below stood Kurt von Felsen. The eyes of the two men met, unflinching. Then the German swung sharply on his heel. He threw a word over his shoulder with a sharp ring of command and the girl followed him without a look toward Thorne. The latter watched them disappear down the path.

THAT night Halla did not appear at dinner. In the morning Thorne went for a long ramble. When he returned to the inn for lunch the old lady was alone at the other table. Afterwards, his impatience getting the better of him, Thorne went to find the proprietor.

"Have your other guests gone?"

"Yes sir. To the Concordia."

"For how long?"

"For some days of climbing. Perhaps they do not return here."

Ten minutes later Thorne was packing his Rucksack for the tramp up to the Concordia Hut.

He marched steadily upstream, the snow crunching under his hobnails. Dark crags bordered the mile-wide river of ice.

At last, in the failing light, he stood in the center of a bowl five miles across from rim to rim, packed with a mass of snow hundreds of feet deep. Off to the right of the amphitheater he could see a black cluster of rocks that broke through the white surface. That was the Faulberg, the location of the Concordia Hut.

In a quarter of an hour he was at the base of the rocks. Above him he could see the outline of the hut with its high peaked roof.

"Thorne!"

At the startled exclamation he turned and saw Halla, risen from a sheltered spot among the boulders.

"What are you doing here?" she whispered.

"I've come for you."

At the look of joy that sprang into her face his heart exulted. He took both her hands in his. "You'll come away with me, Halla, and marry me?"

She shook her head. "I can't," she said. "Kurt—"

"What can he do?"

She was silent a moment. Then: "He would kill you," she said in a low voice.

Thorne smiled. "I don't believe it," he began, when suddenly she grasped his hand tightly. There was a clatter of hobnails on the rocks above and Rauber, the guide, appeared. He looked from one to the other, then without a word he turned and climbed back toward the hut.

"Please go away, Thorne," Halla pleaded. "Quickly. Before he comes down."

Thorne shook his head. "We'll go together," he said and started up toward the hut. After a moment's hesitation she followed him.

Von Felsen stood in the doorway, barring the entrance. In his face there was not the slightest sign that he was aware of Thorne's approach. The latter stopped a few paces away, facing him with Halla at his side. For a few moments no word was spoken. Then, still without looking at Thorne, von Felsen spoke in German to Halla. His tone was hard and even—the words clipped short.

Halla turned to Thorne: "He says that you must leave the hut at once," she said rapidly.

Thorne didn't move. Von Felsen turned and spoke a word through the open door. Instantly Rauber appeared. He grasped his ice-ax as if it were a club.

"Thorne," Halla's voice was urgent. "Please go. Because I ask you to. Don't you see that you can't help me now by staying?"

Thorne drew in a long breath. Then he swung on his heel and, without a glance back, started down the rocks.

He took the back track down the glacier. When the hut was hidden, curving back in a wide circle he returned to the rocks of the Faulberg. Now he was behind the hut. He approached it cautiously and examined each window. Then he made his way to a shed near at hand where he found a pile of straw and a few discarded blankets.

AT TWO hours after midnight he rose and taking his Rucksack and ice-ax went toward the hut. At the window of the women's bunk room he tapped lightly. He could hear Halla move across the floor and then her whisper at the shutter:

"Thorne?"

"Halla," he whispered back, "get dressed quickly and come out this way through the window."

He waited, straining his ears for every sound. Soon the shutter opened and Halla stepped over the sill.

"Thorne," she whispered, "are you doing this just because you're sorry for me?"

"Because I love you," he answered and took her in his arms.

With Thorne leading the way they descended to the edge of the glacier. Tying the rope around her waist he lit his lantern. Plodding on ahead, he was brought up with a jerk on the rope. Halla was standing still, staring back toward the Faulberg.

"Look!" she called.

In front of the hut a point of light was moving. It wavered back and forth, then started to zigzag down the rocks.

"He's found out. They're coming."

Thorne quickly put out the lantern. They went faster now. The moon had set and it was hard to find the way in the darkness. The sky changed from black to a dirty gray. The dawn ran across to the zenith. Thorne kept looking anxiously behind. At last he saw what he had hoped not to see. Down on the floor of the bowl were two black dots. They were moving in his direction. Halla followed his eyes and needed no explanation. She came closer and clutched his hand.

"They're a long way off. They can't catch up to us now, can they?"

He let her think that, but he had no illusions about it. Those two behind were coming fast. Once over the crest, Halla and he would crawl down at a snail's pace. Every step would have to be cut in hard ice. The pursuers would use those steps and would go five feet to their one.

They were on the rim of the bowl. A sheer wall of rock fell away below their feet. Then Thorne pointed out a gulley, a ribbon of snow and ice that wound down the whole extent. For the first thousand feet it was appallingly steep, then it eased off to a gentler slope. That was the staircase down which they must cut their way. It was the Lauithor—Gate of the Avalanches.

Thorne went first. His ax swung below him like a rapid pendulum. He had never cut steps so fast, yet each one must be shaped perfectly.

"Don't wait to cut them so deep," Halla called. "I won't slip."

In an hour they were a little more than half-way down the steepest part. Suddenly, as Thorne looked up, a man's head and shoulders appeared, silhouetted against the sky on the rim of the pass. Then another. He heard the rumble of a hoarse shout that echoed between the cliffs.

He turned back to the step cutting. When he looked up again the two had already come down a third of the staircase that had taken him an hour to cut.

THE TWO men were only a hundred yards behind, coming down in smooth rhythm. Halla and Thorne would be overtaken in another ten minutes. Thorne looked around him. The cliffs that bordered the ice gulley were not quite so sheer now. If he could fight a way down them he wouldn't be making a stairway for the pursuers.

They left the ice. The rock slabs were steep but there were holds for hands and feet. Halla went first now, Thorne coaching her from above and holding the rope tight.

Now both parties were on the same slab, a huge block of granite uptilted at a steep angle.

There was a sudden outbreak of sound from above—a smothered shout, nails scraping on granite. An ice ax went clattering past Thorne.

He looked up in time to see the thing happen.

The two had been climbing with twenty feet of rope between them, the guide leading, von Felsen above. Von Felsen must have slipped and was sliding down the smooth rock gathering momentum with every yard. He flashed past Rauber just out of reach, then his foot caught on something, he turned over and began to fall head downward. A knob of rock was in his path. Thorne could hear the thud of his head striking it. His body went limp and he was thrown over on the steep ice of the gulley where he hurtled down the full length of the rope.

The jerk tore Rauber from his insecure stance. But he caught a splinter of rock at the edge of the gulley and hung there against the ice, the entire weight of von Felsen's body dragging down at his waist.

Thorne looked at Halla and saw that she was safe on a ledge a few feet below. Quickly he untied himself and began to climb. He had never gone so fast over dangerous rock. When he reached the level of von Felsen's limp body, Rauber above was still hanging on.

Thorne cut two deep steps in the ice and moved over until he could touch von Felsen. Slipping a coil of rope around the latter he returned to his anchorage on a yard wide shelf. He hauled in and in a moment had the German lying on the rock. Rauber, feeling the rope relax, gave a powerful heave and swung himself back to safety. Soon he clambered down and was bending with Thorne over von Felsen's body.

Thorne had already bound his handkerchief tightly over the gash in the German's forehead and with lumps of snow had almost stopped the flow of blood.

Von Felsen opened his eyes. But there was no recognition in them and in a moment he lapsed into unconsciousness again.

Rauber crouched over him like a dog over his master's body. Thorne roused him with a hand on his shoulder and working together they managed to get von Felsen down to the shelf where Halla was waiting. When she looked at his closed eyes and the blood-stained face she caught her breath sharply.

"Is he dead?" she asked in a low voice.

"No, but we'll have to get him down as quickly as possible."

They roped up again. Halla went first while Thorne above her kept the rope taut. Von Felsen was tied between Thorne and Rauber. They went one at a time, Rauber coming last and lowering his master's body gently from shelf to shelf.

* * * * *

A few hours later they stood before the entrance of a hut. The sun, still high in the sky, glittered against the great wall of rock and ice down which they had come. Below them they could see the path winding down through desolate, boulder-strewn slopes.

Inside the hut they had left von Felsen lying in a bunk, wrapped in blankets, his head swathed in wet cloths. His breathing was even now, it was evident that he was beginning to recover.

Thorne and Hall hesitated a moment before they took the down path. Raube stood in the doorway, his shoulders almost filling it from side to side, and looked at them from under his lowered brows. It was impossible to tell what his expression meant. At last he growled something in a deep voice and turned back abruptly.

Halla looked up at Thorne and smiled.

"He says: 'God go with you'," she said.

WASHINGTON AT A GLANCE

Labor Split Is Not Understood

Give Impression They Disagree On Question Of Policy Only

RECALL OLD I. W. W. GROUP

Central Press
Washington Bureau
602 Times-Herald Bldg.

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The nature of the split in labor's ranks between horizontal unionism, led by President William Green of the A. F. of L., and vertical unionism, led by President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers, seems to me not to fully understood even by the chieftains of the conflicting factions.

Probably this is a brash statement to be made by a mere bystander.

All the same, if the opposing leaders do understand what they are quarreling about, I don't think they explain it clearly.

CONFLICTING PHILOSOPHIES

The impression they give is that they disagree on a question of policy.

The A. F. of L.'s policy is one of craft unionism; several entirely distinct crafts may be employed in a single industry—on one job, indeed. They doubtless are mutually friendly but they are independent of each other except for their A. F. of L. affiliation.

Lewis' contention is that mass production has so scrambled the trades that respective industries can better be organized in toto, regardless of craft lines.

This divergence of opinion, to be sure, is on an issue of policy—to be argued but not viciously fought over.

The real split appears to me to involve a clash between conflicting labor philosophies—the A. F. of L. philosophy that the A. F. of L. is interested only in the welfare of highly skilled groups of workers and the Lewisonian philosophy that ALL labor is labor.

* * *

"ARISTOCRACY OF LABOR?"

That is to say:

A highly skilled craftsman, satisfied with his pay, hours and working conditions, may be as indifferent to common labor's status as any greedy capitalist. He will not be indifferent to the interests of his associated highly skilled crafts; he will regard them as his brethren.

But unorganized, promiscuous labor?

It is quite possible that he will be as careless of it as a plutocrat.

The I. W. W. was illustrative of this complaint. The Wobblies were less bitter against capitalistic oppression than against the "aristocracy of labor".

NOT AN ALTRUIST

The purpose of that kind of a unionist is to take care of himself—by organization.

Which is all right, but he isn't necessarily an altruist.

He may, as an individual, feel for the masses. Or he may not. He is just like me—or anyone.

* * *

EXCEPTIONS

There are exceptions.

Assistant Secretary Edward F. McGrady, called as a witness before a congressional investigating committee, when an A. F. of L. organizer, was asked, "You're speaking for organized labor?" answered, "Yes, and inasmuch as unorganized labor is inarticulate, I'm trying to speak for unorganized labor also."

I likewise knew an A. F. of L. organizer of the name of Carroll, who, dispatched on a mission in the south, completely forgot his original task because he was so outraged by conditions of common Negro labor on the river levees, and returned to Washington to denounce them. His story is embalmed in congressional reports; it goes no farther.

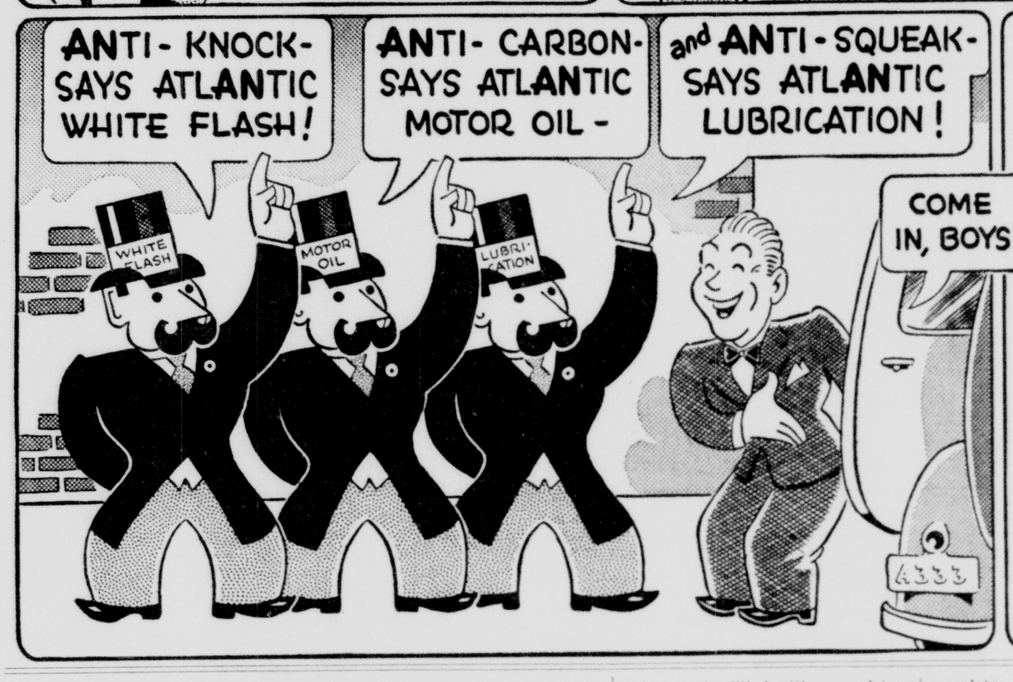
ATLANTIC'S 3 LITTLE MEN — WHITE FLASH, MOTOR OIL, LUBRICATION

AN ANECDOTE ABOUT ANN



AND HERE'S THE ANSWER!

WE know that Atlantic's 3 Products are good for your car. Why? Because they did what no others in history have ever done before — took six stock automobiles 100,000 miles each, without a speck of carbon being cleaned from any car, or a single repair being made to any lubricated engine part!

That famous Toms River Road Test proves one thing very definitely; and that is that you should try Atlantic White Flash, Atlantic Motor Oil and Atlantic Lubrication in your own car. No other products have ever been proved for you as definitely and completely as these. Just use All 3 Atlantic Products for the rest of this month — and see how your performance goes up, and your motoring costs go down!

Deputy Sheriff Elmer Taylor calls attention to the fact that this is the last day for filing executions on properties to be sold in October. Indications are the list will be somewhat smaller than the list of 38 to be sold next Monday.

In the estate of the late Konstantinos Alexandrakis, of Ellport, letters of administration have been issued by Register and Recorder William R. Hanna to Peter Kallichis. In the estate of Fern Reynolds also known as Florenda Reynolds, letters of administration have been issued to Velma E. Patton.

With the opening of schools throughout the county the highway patrol has issued a warning with reference to school busses. Under the law no motorist is allowed to pass a school bus which is taking on or discharging children. The state highway patrol proposes to enforce this law to the letter. There have been several fatal accidents in Lawrence County in connection with the passing of school busses.

County Treasurer Joseph H. Hartland urges all delinquent taxpayers to take advantage of the emergency act of the last legislature, abating penalty and interest. Arrangements must be made to pay these taxes before November 1. If you have any delinquent taxes prior to the year 1935, you can save all interest and penalty by paying the same now. If you cannot pay them all at once, you can still take advantage of this law by agreeing to pay in installments of 20 per cent each year for five years. But if you desire to pay delinquent taxes by installments or in full, you must pay all your 1935 taxes, with penalty and interest, provided they were not previously paid. In future years during the installment period, you must also pay the current year's taxes before they become delinquent.

The poet who advised to "build with a firm ample base," should see the base that has been prepared for the flag pole to be erected on the court house lawn. A hole four feet square and five feet deep was dug. This is to be filled with several tons of concrete. The county commissioners had an engineer tell them how much concrete it would take to hold the big iron pole.

An appeal from the decision of Justice Joseph J. Francis of New Wilmington, has been filed by the defendant in the case of D. A. Mattocks against L. A. Pearsoll and Company. The matter in dispute is a bill for 3000 feet of lumber. The justice gave judgment in favor of the plaintiff for $54.

Registration Clerk, Thomas Edmunds, with three assistants, are still at work classifying the new registrants and changes in registration, which were made previous to September 3rd, the last day for changes. Within a few days it will be possibe to secure data on the complete registration of the city. October 3rd is the last day on which new registrations may be made.

So many "mushroom" parties have filed nominating petitions at Harrisburg this year, that it is said that the counties having voting machines will not be able to use them. The exercise of the inallenable rights of Americans is too broad for the machines. There are too many tickets on the ballot. Seven parties have qualified to run candidates on a state wide basis. The result will be that paper ballots will have to be used. Happily Lawrence County has escaped the luxury of voting machines that cannot be used.

County commissioners will begin sitting as a board of tax revision on December 1st, this year, which is a month earlier than usual. They will hear complaints on the valuations put on properties by assessors at the tri-ennial assessment which is being made this year.

ELECTRIC RANGE

but let her tell you in her own words —

Mrs. Elizabeth Carson
Pennsylvania Power Co.
New Castle, Pa.

Dear Mrs. Carson:

I just want to write you a few lines and tell you how very much we enjoy our Universal Electric Range. We have been using it for three months now and like it better every day.

Since I cannot see, someone would always say, "Now stay away from the stove until someone is in," for they were afraid I would get over the flame; but now I can bake a cake or whatever I choose whenever I choose, for the electric range is so safe. I merely touch the lines on the Oven Control and know the temperature of the oven; then when I want to test things, I can just pull the rack out a little and so do not burn my arm.

Another thing is the Economy Cooker, besides being conserving on heat it is a safety device to me. On the old range, one day I was stirring a pan of apple butter and before I realized it had moved, it slipped from the top of the range to the floor; fortunately I was not scalded, but with the inserted Economy Cooker this could not have happened.

So in closing I will say, thanks to the electric, for we get a thrill every time we turn the button.

Sincerely yours,
RUTH YOUNG.

Mercer County Has Problem In Voting Machines

Large Number Of Parties To Be Provided For In November Election

(Special To The News)

MERCER, Sept. 10.—Will the 56 voting machines used in the larger towns and cities of the county be large enough to take the ballot that will be voted at the election of November 3 is a problem that is giving the commissioners and their clerk in charge of elections no little worry.

The press has already printed stories of the impossibility of use of the voting machines in Allegheny county due to the multiplicity of tickets to be voted, a total of 12. The Allegheny county election bureau, states the article, will have to resort to the use of paper ballots to provide space sufficient for the printing of all the parties and candidates that will be in the November 3 contest.

The machines used here can handle up to nine parties providing that the 36 spaces for electors in each party do not have to be allocated for use on the machine face. The officials state that a recent state act provides that the voting for president and vice president was a vote for electors of that party but that does not negate the act of assembly providing there must be an equivalent number of spaces as the total of candidates for the writing in of names that might appear more suitable to the voter.

It is on the decision of this question that hinges the fate of use of the machines in Mercer county where they have been used for ten years and have grown quite popular. The preparation for the election is being watched with anxiety by the commissioners due to this fact. Regardless of the outcome, it is certain that the ballot presented the electors will be the largest in county history. Officials state that a court decision is necessary and is expected to solve this matter. It has been taken up with the higher courts by the larger counties.

Resume Hearing On Milk Prices

First Test Case Of Dealers Over Recent Price Fixing By Control Board

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Sept. 10.—The controversy over what constitutes "reasonable" milk prices in central Pennsylvania was to be resumed in court here today, the third day of hearings on the appeal of the Ryder Dairy, Inc., Lemoyne, from the price-fixing order of the Pennsylvania milk control board.

Already in the record was the testimony of John Pfautz, senior examiner of the board, who charged his investigation of the appellant's books revealed the company made "substantial" profits this year, and had allowed discounts to dealers besides making underpayments to producers in violation to the order.

Counsel for the dairy firm said they would produce figures to show the company operated at a loss during the time covered by Pfautz's investigation, and that the prices fixed by the board are "unreasonable and confiscatory".

The Ryder appeal is acting as a test case, to pave the way for actions by several other companies if successful.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 10.—Because "the political battle is pre-eminently a battle of the women, for the women and by the women", and because the women voters will disown the "New Deal" in the coming election, Gov. Alfred M. Landon will be elected in a landslide next November.

That was the message left today by former Congressman Thomas W. Phillips of Butler, Pa., with the Woman's Republican club.

Van Eman Hurls No-Hit Game As Ryantown Wins

Clarence Van Eman Hurls Six Innings Of Hitless Ball Against Newport

Clarence "Ace" Van Eman of the Ryantown pitching staff carved a niche in the baseball hall of fame last night at the Ryantown Field when he held the Newport, Pa. team hitless and runless for six innings.

Lepardo on the knoll for the Newporters also pitched a fine game being found for only three hits but Ryantown bunched hits in the fourth and fifth for their two runs.

The stars of the game were the Parado brothers, Joe and Ed, the latter turning in a real circus catch to aid Van Eman's no-hitter.

Van Eman fanned three men in the six frames. He had the Newportians at his mercy all during the abbreviated game.

Ryantown will play at home on Sunday with a team to be named later.

Yankees Capture American Pennant

Defeat Cleveland In Double Bill To Win Pennant In Junior Circuit

Giants Still Have To Dispose Of Cards And Cubs To Gain National Gonfolon

By LAWTON CARVER
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—With the Yankees definitely in as pennant winners on the earliest date the race has been decided in their circuit, importance of the baseball situation rests today entirely in the National League, as three clubs—Giants, Cards and Cubs—seek to declare themselves in on the world series.

The Yankees snagged their end of it beyond rebuttals by beating the Indians once yesterday, then added to their margin by making it two in a row in the double-header They will defend the prestige of the American League for the eighth time in the playoff with the ultimate National League standard-bearer.

While they thus were bringing to a close what had been a foregone conclusion for weeks, the National League remained complicated as ever, with the Giants still the standouts to win and make the world series a 10-minute jump between the Yankee Stadium and Polo grounds.

The Giants remained 4½ games in front of the Cardinals by splitting a twin bill with the Reds, Freddy Fitzsimmons pitching them to an opening victory, 4 to 2, and giving the Reds their total of runs when Kampouris homered with one on, and the Reds taking the second, 3 to 2.

Schumacher homered in this one for one of the Giants' runs, but soon thereafter was relieved by Gumbert, while the Reds were utilizing the superb pitching of Bennie Frey and Ray Davis to win the game.

Cardinals Win

A two-run rally by the St. Louis Cardinals broke up a brilliant 15-inning pitching battle between Jim Winford of the Cards and Danny MacFayden, Boston veteran, as St. Louis won, 3 to 1.

The Cubs failed to take advantage of the Giants' split by getting only an even break in a pair with the Phils, and for their exertion they remained six games behind, with virtually no chance of catching up.

They took the opener, 10 to 3, on Larry French's eight-hit pitching, then succumbed in the second in 12 innings, 5 to 4, Sivess going the route to score the victory over Carlton, who had relieved Henshaw.

The Dodgers outlasted the Pirates, 8 to 7.

Yanks Win Pennant

The American League battlefront was wrapped around the Yankees, who, besides clinching the pennant, went further and maintained customary power to score 23 runs in two games.

They took the opener from the Indians, 11 to 3, on Monte Pearson's pitching, then annexed the nightcap, 12 to 9, with Gehrig clouting his 44th homer with the bags loaded, and Di Maggio belting another one for good measure. Hadley and Murphy pitched the second.

The White Sox remained in second place by beating the Red Sox, 3 to 2, but required 13 innings to do it. Kennedy outpitched Walberg and Grove over that route.

The Senators climbed into third place by beating the tigers, 11 to 4. Kress, Chapman and Sington provided the margin of victory with a home run outburst.

Four New Castle Boys With Civics

Paul McCullough Has Earned Enviable Record This Season

GUNNETT, SCAGLIONE AND HUFF ON TEAM

Four members of the East Side Civics, who captured the championship of the Youngstown Class "AA" title last Sunday are new Castle Sandlotters. They are Paul McCullough, pitcher; Charley Scaglione, catcher; Dorey Gunnett, pitcher, and Mickey Huff, outfielder.

Paul McCullough, the outstanding hurler in the league, came through with a 4-1 triumph over the Youngstown Sheet and Tube nine to cinch the title. He yielded only three hits and fanned 10 batsmen. Charley Scaglione was the catcher. Mickey Huff clouted a three base hit.

McCullough has been burning up the Ohio league this season. His feats show 10 victories, two defeats; no earned runs in 37 innings and only one base on balls in 37 innings. While McCullough was building up this notable record the outfielders were enjoying a day of rest. In 33 innings the outer garden men failed to chalk up a putout. To date, McCullough has 127 strikeouts.

Dorey Gunnett, another feature pitcher in the league, came through with a fine performance, just missing a no-hit no-run contest. Hurling the second game of a doubleheader last Sunday, Gunnett set down the Tubers with two hits, winning 2-1. With two outs an outfielder missed an easy out, spoiling the no-hit feat. The next man up singled. Had the outfielder caught the ball the side would have been retired.

Next Saturday the Civics will play in the national professional "AA" tournament in Cleveland. In all probabilities, McCullough will hurl for the Civics.

This morning Paul McCullough told a New Castle Newsman that he has made arrangements to rejoin the Minneapolis Millers of the American Association League next season. Since McCullough has regained his old time form the hard hitting Minneapolis aggregation is interested in placing the local hurler on their staff.

BESSEMER TO USE DICK NORD IN LAST GAME

Inasmuch as Paul McCullough will pitch for the East Side Civics against the Rosenblooms at Cleveland Sunday, he will not be able to occupy the hill for the A. S. & T. P., therefore causing worry for Alec Black, manager of the Tin Mill. Jim Martin, mentor for Bessemer, plans to use Dick Nord or Hrvatine, probably the former, against the Tin Mill.

Coates or Gunnett may draw the hurling assignment against Bessemer.

The last time A. S. & T. P. batted against Bessemer, they made a run for every hit as their willows were loaded with dynamite.

Request City To Condition Field

Final Game Of Lawrence Loop Series Carded For E. & A.

EXPECT LARGEST CROWD SUNDAY

City officials have been quested by President Alec Samuels and Secretary Eddie Connery of the Lawrence County Baseball league to condition the E. & A. field, Seventh ward for the final game of the series between the A. S. & T. P. and Bessemer. The series now is deadlocked and the last game will be played on a neutral field.

It is said that championship play would be impossible on the Rosena site and it is believed that the biggest crowd of the season will attend the final game.

It was decided to take the game to the E. & A. field if the diamond could be scraped and the grass cut in the outfield.

Inasmuch as the two teams have been playing to thousands of people every time they clash and the public is interested vitally in the teams having a good diamond and field the city officials will hop to the task.

The time for the game has not yet been set.

A DIRECT HINT!

He was boring the young lady to tears when in came her dog.

NEW CASTLE HIGH READY FOR OPENER

First Game Of 1936 Will Bring Braddock High Here As Opponents

Game Starts At 8 P. M. Nine Veterans In Probable First Team Lineup

Another 24 hours and the hysteria for the 1936 football season will be on. Taggart Stadium Friday night will be the scene of lots of activity as Braddock high football team marches into the arena to do battle with the "Red Hurricane" of New Castle high coached by Phil Bridenbaugh.

The kickoff at 8 p. m. should find a big crowd on hand for the initial game of the year. Head Coach Phil Bridenbaugh will give the boys a final talking to about 15 minutes before game in the field house and will announce the starting lineup.

Probable First Team

The probable starting eleven will be as follows, this being merely a brainstorm by the writer and not authentic in the least: Nocera and Covelli at the ends, Leonard and Roussos at the tackles, Vargo at center, Small and Jokinen at the guards and in the backfield will probably be Mumford at quarter, Cox and Perrett at the halves and DeCaprio at fullback.

Braddock will be the first Class AA conference game for the "Canes". It will give the teams in the district a chance to glimpse the New Castle high team in action. New Castle is opening a week earlier than most of the schools. There will be no end of scouts here tomorrow night trying to find out the Bridenbaugh system.

With football about to commence again it reminds us that fall and winter is at hand, and the topcoats and long underwear will soon make its appearance.

Split Double Softball Bill

Shenangos, Class B champs of New Castle, and the Park Gates of Ellwood City, split a double bill at the Ellwood City field, the Shenangos taking a 6 to 4 setback in the first game and then taking the second game, 3 to 1.

Tony Capp almost entered the hall of fame in the second game of the bill, allowing only one hit. The Shenangos had 10 hits off of the pitching of the star hurler, Gallagher. C. Shaffer and Gallagher hurled the victory for the Park Gates in the first game and Fi Augustine was the losing pitcher for the Shenangos.

Home Run Hitters

(International News Service)

Kress, Senators (2); Moore, Phillies (2); Chapman, Senators; Sington, Senators; Gehrig, Yankees; Di Maggio, Yankees; Schumacher, Giants; Phelps, Dodgers; Gehringer, Tigers; Walker, Reds; Knickerbocker, Indians; Kampouris, Reds.

Leaders: Gehrig, Yankees 44; Foxx, Red Sox 37; Trosky, Indians, 36; Ott, Giants 30; Di Maggio, Yankees 26; Averill, Indians 25.

Sexton Popular With Mat Fans

Sexton May Draw Big With Grandovitch If Weather Cool

Although Pete Askounes presented four of the best bouts so far witnessed by fans the crowd was rather slim Monday but it is believed that with the appearance of Frank Sexton as an opponent to Leon Grandovitch, the Arena gardens will be crowded to the doors next Monday night.

Knowing that the gate receipts was slim and that they would be fortunate to have gasoline money leaving the city the wrestlers forgot this thought when they went to work and according to the mat enthusiasts who did brave the heat claim it was one of the best shows of the season.

Nango Sing Coming

Sexton is a popular heavyweight, locally. He went over big in all his appearances here and while he lost to Everett Marshall the fact remains he kept the world champion busy and expects to do the same to the Russian when they match holds.

Realizing that new faces mean considerable in any branch of sport, Bill Lion, the matchmaker, has scheduled Larry Bennett to take on Al Getz and Nango Sing to try conclusions with King Kong. Jensen and Govro will complete the card.

The Arena gardens has been converted into a nice place for wrestling. There is plenty of good air, good seats and the place surpasses Centennial field accommodations 100 percent. With cool, clear weather the promoter expects to make up some of his losses next Monday night.

Union Gridders Hard At Work

Will Face Ellwood City On Saturday, September 19, At Ellwood City

Union High School football squad was put through a stiff drilling yesterday afternoon by Head Coach David Morgan Boyd. The Unions will open the 1936 season at Ellwood City on Saturday September 19.

Three teams went through maneuvers yesterday in the first afternoon rehearsal of the year. The boys have been given night workouts for the past two weeks.

Five Veterans

There are five lettermen back on the team this year as follows—Jim Pattison who played center last year will be used at a fullback spot this season. Captain Jim Fulton tackle from last year, Joe Ostrosky will be shifted from tackle to a halfback post. Bill King will hold down an end job and Joe Wotowitz will be shifted from fullback to quarterback. Eve a regular halfback last year has not returned to school yet.

Coach Boyd is depending on the second team from last year to fill in the vacancies left by graduation. Union will have a fast and light team is the indication.

Boyd will be assisted this year by Jay G. Rudolph, R. Thompson, M. Pattison and W. L. Burkhart faculty manager. Burkhart is arranging a fine nine game schedule at the present time.

CROTON TEAM HAS CEREMONY

The Croton Progressives, softball champions of New Castle for 1936, were feted last night at the Progressive club rooms on Croton avenue. About 35 were present and the event was most enjoyable. Phil Perrotta, president of the club, acted as toastmaster for the occasion.

Speeches were made by various members of the team and by Charles "Bugs" Walther and Michael "Jake" Babovsky, special guests of the club. A fine program of entertainment was rendered.

Westminster Grid Squad Will Start Training Monday

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Sept. 10—Abandoning all preliminary hardening and setting-up drills, Coach George W. Roark, new Westminster College varsity coach, will issue uniforms Monday morning, September 14, and varsity drill will officially begin in the afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The Titan gridders will have a short three weeks before the opening game of the season with Mt. Union at New Wilmington, October 3. The game with the Ohioans will be probably the toughest on the Titan seven-game schedule, since Westminster lost a 27-0 midseason games with the Alliance, Ohio collegians last season.

So far there are no hold-outs on the Titan squad. The chief loss will be last year's lettermen Arrowsmith, Watt, Austen, Auld, Turner and Manse. Merrill Straw, tackle, will return to the squad after a year's absence; and add a 200 pound lineman to the Titan front wall.

Harry Shoup, Bessemer, full-back candidate, out with injuries most of the 35 season, will bolster up the backfield in addition to Bailey, Sharon; Laraway, Erie and Mintz, Butler quarterback.

Coach Roark will use a system which will combine the best of the Warner and Notre Dame system—a 4-4-3 shift formation popularized under the name "the squirrel cage" shift. Roark's objection to the Notre Dame system is it requires too many specialists, whereas the Warner system places more emphasis on straight football and teamwork.

Coach Roark hopes to develop a backfield that will depend on cleverness and fast shifts. He has had considerable experience in developing creditable teams with a shortage of material. Expectations are that he will have a slightly larger squad than the 1935 Titan aggregation, which numbered 28 men. With a fair freshman turnout Coach Roark expects to have between 30 and 35 men out.

Caddies Needed For Field Day

Yanks And Giants Officials Hold Chinfest Over Coming World's Series

By PAT ROBINSON
International News Service
Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Along Broadway today we find those grinning dough-grabbing twins, Ed (Yankees) Barrow and Ed (Giants) Brannick, arm in arm with Col. Jake (70 millions) Ruppert.

"I'm glad that's over," says Jake. "I lost ten pounds worrying these last two weeks."

"Too bad, Colonel," said Brannick, in mock sympathy . . . "and your Yanks only had an 18 game lead with 18 left to play. That's tough."

"I've got thousands of out of town world series orders already," volunteered Barrow.

Giants "Cocky"

"Me too," said Brannick. "And we ain't in yet. But we will be. And what we'll do to your Yanks, Colonel, will probably get us in bad with the S. P. C. A."

"Sez you," chorused Ruppert and Barrow.

Well, well, well . . . do your eyes deceive us? . . . or is that Babe Ruth and Kate Smith ploughing through autograph seekers? Yep, it is. And both carrying weight for age, if anybody should ask you.

Kate may never succeed in lugging that moon over the mountains . . . but at least she's got a moon-faced pal to lug around now. They're going on the air together. And the Babe's taking himself seriously as a comedian.

"I'll lay 'em in the aisles," says Babe . . . just like any true ham actor. "But there aren't any aisles on the air," Kate reminds him. "Well," says Babe, "then I'll panic them in their own homes," promises the home svelte half of the act.

Carnera Broke

Here's Louis Soresi, Primo Carnera's old manager, waving a cable from Da Preem, who now able to ambulate with the aid of a cane.

Primo's returning for some bankruptcy proceedings, and would Louis please rush him 300 smackers for expenses? Louis will.

Here's Mike (20th Century) Jacobs, with the info that the Joe Louis-Al Ettore advance sale for Philly has reached $40,000. Mike's figuring on a quarter million for the fight.

Louis Is Baseball Fan

Here's Joe pestering Mike for world series ducats, and promising to lay Ettore among the sweet peas. "He's wide open like the Phillies' infield," says Joe, the red hot baseball fan.

And Saluda, a $110 hoss, may cop that Harbor Hill steeplechase at Aqueduct today.

Here's Johnny Goodman, heading for Garden City, with 210 others, where they'll compete for the U. S. amateur title next week. That old Garden City course will give them all many a battle. And many a headache.

Firemen Answer Ryantown Team

Replying to Mr. Heasley, business manager of the Ryantown baseball club:

The Ryantown baseball team through Mr. Heasley ran an article in your sports column on the date of Tuesday, Sept. 8, regarding another game with the Sixth Ward Firemen's ball club on Sunday, Sept. 20.

We wish to state that Mr. Heasley asked us for a game on the above date, but we did not give him any definite answer but would let him know later if arrangements would be made.

We, the Sixth Ward Firemen, feel that we have taken the series from Ryantown in a fair series and if they cannot take it without blaming their defeat on a couple of umpires, we feel sorry for them. The umpires, Mr. Severa and Mr. Keller, have the reputation of being good and honest umpires and when any club starts tearing down the reputation such as these two men possess, we are at a loss to really know what to do or how to please said ball club.

There will be no ball game on the 20th as far as our club is concerned.

We are very sorry that the Ryantown ball club took their defeat so seriously.

At this writing, we, the Sixth Ward Firemen's ball club, lay a challenge to any club in Lawrence county to a series of games, as we feel that we have a real ball club and are open to all challengers.

Sixth Ward Firemen's
Ball Club,
J. B. ZEIGLER.

Salient Facts Of First Grid Game

Faculty Manager Ralph H. Gardner of New Castle High today made announcements of interest to the football fans as follows:

The gates Friday night will open at 7 o'clock.

The kickoff will be at 8 o'clock.

The fans are asked to use the same entrances as last year in reaching the various sections of the stadium.

One new section has been added in the concrete stand, and there will be seven instead of six sections as last year. Each ramp will be a section this year, starting from the ramp at the northern most end of the stadium.

The tickets will be numbered according to ramps and will make it easier for the fans to find their seats. Look at your ticket and see what the ramp number is, and there you will have the proper door to enter the stands.

Ramps Are Numbered

The ramps are numbered in large black letters from one to seven.

The section four seats are the best on the field, and will be located in the center in what was known heretofore as the press box section.

For those fans sitting in the bleachers on the far side of the field they will enter the Cunningham avenue gate or the gate at the southern end of the stadium.

All concrete stand ticket holders enter the main gate in the front of the stadium. All press passes and complimentary tickets enter the main gate.

Toilets for the ladies and toilets for the men are located under the bandstand for the convenience of the fans on the western side of the field. For those in the concrete stands, the toilets are located in the usual place.

Prices For Games

General admission for all home games except the Massillon game will be 40 cents.

Reserved seat tickets in the concrete stands for all home games except the Massillon game 50 cents.

General admission for Massillon game 50 cents.

Reserved seats for Massillon game $1.00.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

Paris Cangie, once known as "Poison Kid" Cangie, owing to his knockout punch, dropped his first opponent in his first attempted come-back bout last night before 12,000 people at Youngstown. He knocked out Tiger Young of Youngstown in the third round of a preliminary bout. Bobby Dean of Washington beat Lloyd Pine of Akron in 10 rounds and Johnny Dobler won from Izzy Schwartz of Columbus in another 10-rounder. Steve Jonda, Struthers won a six round award from Young Terry of Akron and Joe Randall of McKeesport knocked out Thurston McKinney of Detroit in the seventh round. The police ran the show for the benefit of their pension fund.

Muir Wilson took the 2:25 trot in three straight heats. The Sago Lillie took the 2:11 pace in similar fashion and Rilma Grattan turned in three firsts in the 2:25 pace at Fremont yesterday. May West took two of three heats in the 2:26 trot at Marysville and Calumet Figron took the 2:26 pace in three straight heats. In the two-year-old trot Little Pete took the two heats and in the two-year-old pace Maud Hanover did likewise. Mr. Evergreen paced to three firsts in the 2:24 pace at Canton and Peter won the last two heats in the three-year-old stake. Roan Direct took two of three heats in the handicap pace. The 2:24 trot at Medina went five heats with Golden Princess and Worthy Vologda fighting it out. The former took the second heat and Worthy Vologda took the last two heats. Voltario, Julia Hall and The Great each took a heat in the 2:18 trot, but Oil in the Can won easily in the 2:14 trot.

Charlie Dunn, former lightweight, stopped off here yesterday to renew acquaintances. Years ago Charlie was a tough going fighter who turned in many knockouts. He boxed the best boys in this district. Bill Jolly, former promoter, came in today from Erie where he has been handling the throttling on a steam steed. Jolly reported having been at an outing recently where he met Jack Barr, Frankie Borski, Jim Carney, Johnny Carey and other figures well known around here. He said he also had met Young Mosby, the flyweight, who made things interesting for Mickey Donato and other flyweights who cavorted in this section.

Bryan Grant and Fred Perry moved forward yesterday afternoon at Forest Hills to the semi-final round of the national championship. Grant battled for 90 minutes to beat Johnny Van Ryn 3-6, 8-6, 6-0, 6-2, and Perry staved off Henry Culley 6-3, 6-2, 6-1.

Joey Evans, featherweight of Ellwood City, who proved the class of the amateurs, now is in the professional ranks. He turned in several fights that were liked at Philadelphia and his manager, Ross Pansy, Midland, who was here yesterday, is angling for bouts in this district. Evans had an opportunity to box in Pittsburgh but Pansy didn't propose to shoot him in with too strong opposition before Joey has become acclimated to professional surroundings.

Shenangos Named Class B Champs

For the second straight year the Shenangos have won the junior or Class B softball championship. The Shenangos are managed by Joe Cherby, one of the finest managers in the city. He has a fine record behind his name.

President Michael "Jake" Babovsky has declared the Shenangos the champions and they will not play the Keystones on Thursday night. The Shenangos will be dined and gifted at a later date, it was announced.

The Morning Post, established in New York City in 1833, is said to have been the first two-cent daily newspaper published in the United States. The paper failed after three weeks of publication.

Stock Market Quiet Today

Pivotal Issues Settle Into Narrow Trading Range Today

By LESLIE GOULD
International News Service
Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Stocks turned extremely quiet today as pivotal issues settled into a narrow trading range generally above previous closing levels.

A 20 per cent jump in Electric Power Output and the Iron Age report indicating an upward trend for steel operations through the remainder of the month, helped the market.

U. S. Steel and Bethlehem each advanced about a point, while Otis Steel did nearly as well to reach 19. Youngstown Sheet & tube and Republic were fractionally improved.

Rails were led upward by Atchison, which gained close to a point, Baltimore & Ohio, N. Y. Central and Pennsylvania.

Chrysler held around its previous finish and General Motors moved only a small fraction higher.

Most other groups were steady to moderately higher.

Bonds climbed irregularly higher, although governments were soft. Grains and cotton continued slightly better.

New Wilmington Schools Boast Of Six Sets Of Twins

College Town Teachers Have Worries Telling Twins Apart

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Sept. 10—Why do teachers turn gray?

Numerous reasons have been given in the past but latest enrollment data from the New Wilmington schools reveal why New Wilmington teachers turn gray.

The reason is simple—there are six sets of twins enrolled in the schools and almost every teacher in the school building has at least one set of twins under his or her guidance.

Motor Club Asks For Co-operation

Urges Parents And Motorists To Co-operate For The Safety Of Children

An appeal to both motorists and parents to cooperate in protecting school children on their way to and from school was issued today by the New Castle Motor club.

"Teachers and police are working to protect the children against the dangers of traffic," the club statement said, "but to be fully effective, their efforts must be backed up by cooperative action on the part of parents and motorists.

"Upon parents rests the solemn responsibility to warn their children repeatedly about carelessness in crossing the street and to impress upon them the need for caution at all times. Upon motorists rests the equally grave care in the neighborhood of the schools and along all streets where large numbers of children are on their way to or from the classrooms.

"Particular need for extra effort this year is caused by the increased number of children who will be going to school and the greater number of cars on the streets, as a result the likelihood of accident is materially increased.

"With the aid of school safety practice and daily safety lessons in the classroom, the fatility record of the school-age children has shown steady improvement over a period of years.

"With full cooperation by teachers, police, the motorists, parents and the school children themselves, this improvement can be continued. Let it be our objective to make this the safest school on record."

Hamilton Cites Maine Election

Says Result Will Bear Out His Prediction For Landon Vicitory

MEETS LEADERS OF PARTY IN OHIO

(International News Service)

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 10.—Ohio's campaign to raise approximately $500,000 for the Republican party was under way today, following the appearance here of John D. M. Hamilton, national chairman, who told a group of campaign workers that a Republican victory in November is certain.

Hamilton, campaign manager for Gov. Alfred M. Landon, of Kansas, the G. O. P. presidential nominee, left for Washington, D. C., by train following his address last night.

He declared the Maine election next Monday will be the first proof of his prediction that the Republicans will carry every state east of the Mississippi river and north of the Ohio river, "with the exception of one."

During his speech, Hamilton repeatedly criticized James A. Farley, Democratic national chairman.

"Jim Farley said at a press conference a few weeks ago that he couldn't understand why Hamilton was always cracking him when we both were in the same racket," he said.

"That is the typical attitude of a New York politician toward the rest of the United States. Jim Farley is going to hear a racket—not the usual kind of racket—but the racket of 28,000,000 Americans casting their ballots on November 3 to get racketeers out of our government."
